Now A Political Steppingstone? . . .

Unicam Dead-End Theory May Crumble Next Year

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Historically, the Nebraska Unicameral has been tagged a political dead-end, a place where political careers stagnate, not flower.

Rarely since the Unicameral was created in 1934 has the Legislature been a springboard for its members to higher elected offices. Many have tried to launch campaigns for congressional seats from the Legislature (for instance, Sens. Terry Carpenter, Wayne Ziebarth and John DeCamp in 1972) but few have succeeded.

Hence, it is an unwritten axiom that a term in the Legislature is a detour, not a steppingstone, for higher political ambitions.

Those that have broken the Unicameral jinx are written off as the exceptions to the rule; they include former Governors Robert Crosby and Victor Anderson and State Public Services Commissioner Eric Rasmussen.

Oil Firms Slowed Refineries' Output

©The New York Times

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of two articles on the oil companies and the energy crisis. Brit Hume is a Washington-based investigative reporter for ABC News.)

By BRIT HUME

Although there could be no doubt that demand for oil products would continue to boom in the early Nineteen-Seventies, the major companies decided not to increase their refinery capacity significantly.

The majors' spokesmen have insisted that uncertainty about government policy on oil imports and environmentalist objections to new plant construction were the main reasons behind their reluctance to expand refinery capacity.

Whatever the reason, there was no uncertainty about the result it would have. By early 1971, Oil and Gas Journal, the most authoritative of the industry's trade publications, reported that the nation might be on the way toward a shortage of refinery capacity.

The American Petroleum Institute, the industry's voice in Washington, predicted that the shortage would come before 1975. The Interior Department's Office of Oil and Gas published a study containing a similar forecast and declaring that existing refineries would have to be run full tilt to keep up with demand.

Price Controlled

In August 1971, President Nixon imposed wage and price controls.

Gasoline prices were frozen at seasonal highs and heating-oil prices at off-season lows. The freeze created a strong disincentive to the production of heating oil.

The freeze was lifted in November, but oil prices were not decontrolled.

For the first six months of 1972, profits fell almost 5%, although sales were up by an even greater amount.

In early 1972, industry journals were reporting that crude-oil production in both Texas and Louisiana, the two biggest oil states, was declining.

While this was apparently true, it is difficult to know whether it was caused by an actual decline in reserves or by the industry's failure to produce as much as it could.

There are at least some indications the larger companies might have been deliberately slowing production.

Shopping Days till Christmas

Yet some state senators and legislative observers believe 1974 may be the year the "dead-end" theory is chucked for good. The Unicameral, they contend, is undergoing a rapid metamorphosis into a seedbed for new political leadership.

One manifestation of this is the number of legislators regarded as serious contenders for higher offices in 1974, they say.

The current line-up includes: —Sens. Richard Marvel of Hastings and Ernest Chambers of Omaha seeking to challenge incumbent Democratic Gov. J. James Exon.

—there Democratic lieutenant governor prospects, Sens. Gary Anderson of Axtell, Jules Burbach of Crofton and Frank Lewis of Bellevue.

—Sens. Orval Keyes of Springfield and James Waldron of Callaway for the U.S. House of Representatives.

—and Sen. Richard Fellman of Omaha for attorney general.

With these and possibly more running, as one lobbyist remarked, "You're bound to get your 60 cents' worth of politics this session."

Why The Change?

What has changed the tenor of the Legislature from what "used to be like serving on a cemetery board," in the words of one senator, into "a place where you can make a name for yourself"?

Two factors universally agreed upon are recent developments — annual instead of biennial legislative sessions and lengthening senators' terms from two to four years.

The annual sessions keep them before the public eye more often, and the longer terms allow them to run mid-way through their term without having to relinquish their legislative seat.

Of those mentioned earlier, only Waldron and Fellman are not running at mid-term.

Another factor cited is the changing make-up of the members of the Legislature. In 1966 when Waldron was elected to the Unicameral at the age of 30, he was the only member of the body under 39.

Senators Younger

Today nine legislators out of 19 are under the age of 40. The growing sophistication of the electorate, one observer said, is resulting in younger, more aggressive legislators whose ambitions extend beyond the legislative chamber.

Marvel attributes much of the change in the Legislature's attitudes to his potential opponent in 1974, Exon, who he said has inspired an esprit de corps among both Republicans and Democrats, in the Legislature.

Although senators are elected on a nonpartisan ticket, Marvel said, "The governor has made it (the Legislature) partisan" through high-pitched battles over such issues as personal property tax exemptions and state aid to public schools.

The more visible role of state government has also produced some of the changes in the Legislature, observers speculate. Federal revenue sharing, penal reform, aid to education, tax relief on property, environmental and consumer issues have focused on renewed attention on the role of the state and particularly the Legislature.

In the 1965-67 biennium, $137 million was appropriated from the general fund to spend; for fiscal 1973, the Legislature authorized the expenditure of $250 million from the general fund.

ETV Coverage Cited

Observers also credit Nebraska Educational Television's coverage of the Unicameral as yet another reason why senators are considering bids for higher offices.

ETV began following the sessions in 1969 when a one-hour videotaped summary of legislative action was aired once weekly. In 1973, coverage was expanded to a half-hour show aired five nights a week during the session.

Still, the proof that all these factors have altered the complexion of the Legislature and can break the jinx won't be known until the 1974 election is history.

Pawn Tickets Given As Tips

Jackie, a 19-year-old delivery boy who doesn't want his name revealed, has become wealthy from cashing pawn tickets given to him as tips by an aged widow, Mrs. Thomas Field, who couldn't afford to tip him in cash. So far he has realized almost $50,000 from auctioning the pawned items, which included a diamond ring and whisky crates crammed with silver. Jackie said the family pooled their savings to redeem the pawn tickets. And there is more money to come. Mrs. Field died at 81 last February and made Jackie sole heir to the contents of her apartment and to $500-a-month income from a mortgage she held on her former summer estate.

Council Would Trade Parkland For Bypass

By LYNN ZERSCHLING

Star Staff Writer

A split City Council Monday signaled its intent to trade land within Wilderness Park for the proposed West Side Bypass following a second hearing which drew considerable public comment.

The vote was 5 to 2.

Council members Sue Bailey and John Robinson cast the losing votes in calling for a delay until a re-evaluation of the bypass and other alternative routes could be made.

Council members Dick Baker, Helen Boosalis, Steve Cook, Max Denney and Bob Sikyta agreed to the statement of intent providing that:

—the replacement land traded for the parkland be of "equivalent practical and esthetic usefulness, location and market value" as determined by Department of Housing and Urban Development guidelines and as acceptable to the governing bodies of the city and county.

—specific references to the land to be substituted be deleted, as shown in maps attached to the statement.

Delay Suggested

Bailey urged fellow lawmakers to shelve the proposal until further data could be accumulated on the effects the energy crisis will have on the use of motor vehicles and resultant traffic volumes.

Boosalis said such action singling out the bypass project would be unfair and would constitute an "overreaction" on the part of the council to the energy crisis.

In voting for the statement, Boosalis said she had not been convinced the bypass would destroy the park and pointed out the area is not a true wilderness area.

Boosalis said the problem arises in the definition of equivalent land to be traded for parkland and said she wanted to insure that the council and the mayor made the final determination in any land trades.

The second public hearing was held at the request of Sierra Club members who appeared again Monday objecting to the land trade, as did members of the Audubon Society and the Girl Scouts.

State Department of Roads officials and the Chamber of Commerce lobbied for the land trade.

Ron Kurtzer, chairman of the Sierra Club, charged that the land trade makes the Roads Department's environmental impact statement "look good." He contended that not enough study has been given to the impact of a four-lane freeway running adjacent to Wilderness Park.

Other Sierra Club members argued that construction of the bypass would increase noise and air pollution and endanger wildlife living in the natural wilderness area.

Al Hagerstrom charged that the location intersecting the western edge of the park was chosen because it was deemed the least expensive route.

But Chamber of Commerce President John Olsson stressed that in the selection of the route "economics was not given any priority over the environment."

Olsson urged favorable council action on the statement so that the project could be built and alleviate congested traffic on Hwy. 77.

6,000 Cars A Day

Don Swing, director of project development for the Roads Department, noted that Hwy. 77 is carrying a crowded 6,000 cars daily and constitutes a safety hazard to drivers. Projections call for double that number of cars in 20 years, he said.

Additionally, Swing outlined plans to buffer the bypass from the park by screening out noise and pollution as much as possible.

In answer to a question from Boosalis, Director of Parks and Recreation Don Smith said it would be impossible to deaden all noise from the freeway.

Bill Requires End Of Gas Guzzlers By 1978

Washington (UPI) — In a wide-ranging congressional effort to save energy, House and Senate conferees Monday agreed on legislation for year-round daylight savings time and the Senate passed a bill requiring automakers to give more miles to the gallon by 1978.

The daylight savings time measure, expected to pass both houses this week and begin by Jan. 6, was requested by President Nixon on the assumption that the nation could cut its energy consumption by 1% to 1.5% if more activities were conducted in the daylight hours.

The compromise, which would remain in effect until October, 1975, exempted Hawaii, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands and permits exemption of Alaska and Arizona.

The mandate to automakers was part of a broad energy conservation measure which passed the Senate 75 to 15. It would require car manufacturers to begin increasing automobile gas mileage in 1978 and achieve 20 miles per gallon for every car by 1984.

The Senate-passed bill focuses primarily on things that government can do to conserve energy, including new regulations, programs and research studies.

This flurry of congressional activity on the energy front came as the administration ordered a crackdown on diesel fuel price gouging to ease the complaints of disgruntled truckers.

In an effort to avert a threatened work stoppage Thursday and Friday by independent truckers caught in the energy crunch, the Cost of Living Council (CLC) ordered a 48-state check on truck stop prices and a nationwide diesel fuel price audit.

Internal Revenue Service agents made spot checks at 850 truck stops in 16 states during a two-day period and found 224 violators, said CLC Deputy Director James W. McLane, but only 145 violators agreed to roll back prices voluntarily.

The IRS agents were sent out to monitor diesel fuel and gasoline prices after truckers' representatives complained that fuel shortages, high prices

Price Promise Given In Return

. . . Except By Chrysler

Washington (UPI) — The automobile industry was released from government wage and price controls Monday in return for a promise from three auto makers that they would keep car costs — especially for gas-saving compacts — from skyrocketing.

The complex "commitment" between the Cost of Living Council, General Motors, Ford Motor Co. and American Motors included a promise to keep auto prices from increasing more than $150, barring "unforeseen major economic events."

The decision was the biggest so far in returning the nation to a control-free economy, as President Nixon promised.

Contract Accepted

In effect, the agreement accepted the three-year contract concluded between the auto companies and the United Auto Workers. The 8% increase in the pact was higher than the 6.2% CLC guideline for wage and fringe benefit raises.

Chrysler Corp. did not participate in the agreement, although it will also be decontrolled. Its president, Lynn Townsend, said Chrysler cars will obviously "continue to be priced competitively."

CLC Director John T. Dunlop said the ceiling would prevent prices of small cars from being raised since they have become more popular because of the gas shortage.

The agreement, he said, "will prevent excessive price increases that could otherwise result due to strong demand for these cars relative to the industry's capacity to produce them."

The $150 ceiling was lower than the industry could have justified for small cars under CLC regulations, Dunlop said, and "the actions taken today should assure relative stability in wages and prices in the automotive sector through the remainder of the 1974 model year."

Significant Segment

If stability comes as Dunlop predicts, it will affect a major portion of the U.S. economy. GM, Ford, Chrysler and American Motors did about $60 billion in total corporate sales in 1972 and about 3 million people — 3.5% of the labor force — make, sell and service cars.

The auto industry uses about 20% of the nation's steel, 10% of its aluminum, 55% of its lead, 35% of zinc and 65% of synthetic rubber in making 9.2 million passenger cars and 2.8 million trucks and buses.

If the council had not acted Monday, American Motors would have been able to increase prices by $114 a car Tuesday. Ford could have increased prices by $188 a car and Chrysler would have had a $136 increase Wednesday. GM was waiting for a $208 increase later in the week.

The commitment covered these points:

—Ford, GM and American Motors promised to increase the suggested retail base price of their small car lines by no more than $150.

—Ford and GM were limited to increases in the wholesale price of their entire line to no more than $150 per vehicle and American Motors was held to boosts of no more than $100.

—The three companies pledged not to increase the U.S. price of their North American-built cars and trucks again during the 1974 model year "unless forced to by unforeseen major economic events." If this occurs, the council will get cost data from the companies beforehand.

—Ford, GM and AMC agreed not to boost prices on existing customer orders and will ask their dealers to ensure that the price protection is passed on to retail customers.

'Small Cars' Are Identified

Washington (UPI) — Here are the models identified by three automobile makers as "small cars" whose retail base price will be raised by no more than $150:

General Motors: Vega, Nova, Ventura, Omega, Apollo, Camaro and Firebird.

Ford: Pinto, Mustang, Maverick and Comet.

American Motors: Gremlin, Hornet and Javelin.

Menuhins Approve National Broadcast

The Menuhin family has agreed to a Nebraska Educational Television Network suggestion to make available for national broadcast the videotape of their performance in Lincoln Friday evening.

The Menuhins — violinist Yehudi and pianists Yaltah and Hephzibah — performed at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln as part of the state's Willa Cather Centennial.

Friday was the 100th anniversary of the birth of the Nebraska novelist.

The Menuhins made the trip to Lincoln and donated their talent for the concert in honor of "Aunt Willa," whom they knew well when they were children.

The concert, which was broadcast live by the Nebraska ETV Network, was also taped, and that tape will be offered to the Public Broadcasting Service (PBS) for use nationwide.

Ron Hull, program manager of Nebraska ETV, said the Menuhins gave their permission for national broadcast before they left Lincoln for Europe. All three live in London.

Hull said he probably will send the tape to PBS this week for its review.

Hull also reported that the network had received an "absolutely massive" number of phone calls Friday night and Saturday morning from Nebraskans pleased by the concert telecast.

"I took more than 100 calls myself Saturday morning," he said. "This is one of the most successful things done in a long time."

and lower speed limits were hurting their business.

As the IRS checks continued, the American Petroleum Institute disclosed that 3,710 gasoline stations were forced to close during the first six months of the year and estimated that some 10,000 would shut down permanently by the end of 1973.

Roy Ash, head of the Office of Management and Budget, testified before a House subcommittee that the administration still sees gasoline rationing only as a "last resort." Promising a decision by the end of December, he said rationing is only one of many alternatives from which President Nixon's top aides will choose.

Brussels — Secretary of State Kissinger and Foreign Minister Michel Jobert of France clashed over whether the improved relations between the United States and Soviet Union undermined the security of western Europe. At a meeting of Atlantic Alliance foreign ministers in Brussels, Jobert said the agreement called into question the American nuclear guarantees to western Europe. (More on Page 28.)

Europe Braces For Winter

London — The most difficult winter since World War II is in prospect for Europe as her energy crisis intensifies. The shorter days and colder temperatures of December have begun to demonstrate how dramatically the oil shortages arising from the Middle East war will affect the lives of everyone, at least for the next few months and perhaps much longer.

Auto Price Hikes Limited To $150

Washington — The government abolished price and wage controls over the automobile industry in exchange for promises by three manufacturers that they would limit increases on 1974 models. American Motors, Ford and General Motors agreed to mark-up retail prices of 14 small cars by no more than $150. (More on Page 1.)

Banks Asked To Justify Increases

New York — The administration's committee on interest and dividends requested large commercial banks that have raised their prime or base lending rate to 10% to justify the increases. The committee sent telegrams to the First National City Bank and to other banks that have set the 10% rate.

Tapes Given To Jaworski

Washington — Presidential tape recordings and documents, the cause of an explosive confrontation between the former special Watergate prosecutor, Archibald Cox, and President Nixon, are being given to Cox's successor, Leon Jaworski. Chief Judge John J. Sirica of the Federal District Court in Washington turned over the first of the tapes sought by Cox in the July 23 subpoenas.

Daylight Saving Time By Jan. 6?

Washington — An agreement reached by Senate and House conferees could put the nation on year-round Daylight Saving Time to conserve energy as early as Jan. 6. The agreement is scheduled to be ratified by both houses and sent to the President by the end of the week.

GOPs Predict Devastation

Harrisburg, Pa. — If Pennsylvania is still a fair guide to the political balance in the country, the Republican Party faces a national Watergate disaster next year. In Pennsylvania, one of the 25 states that will have both Senate and governor's races next year, Republicans watched the Watergate poison at work in their mostly local races last month, and many of them are talking about devastation in 1974.

New York State Fears Census Drop

New York — The Federal Census Bureau has estimated a population drop for New York state for the first time in census history — a decrease of 102,000 persons as of last July 1 from a year ago. The estimate, still provisional, has aroused state fears of a cut in federal revenue-sharing.

Wheat Crop Brings In $6,500,728,000

Washington (UPI) — With prices booming to record levels under the impact of surging world demand, the 1973 wheat crop is bringing farmers a record $6,500,728,000, the Agriculture Department said Monday.

The previous high value was $3.1 billion in 1947. Last year the crop was worth $2.7 billion.

The crop report also said that the seeding of the 1974 winter wheat crop was virtually completed during November except in some south Atlantic states. Officials said that the crop, though planted later than usual, regained some lost time as a result of a generally mild month in terms of temperatures and soil moisture.

The crop board estimated the market value of the wheat crop at $3.82 a bushel compared with $1.76 last year.

The report gave these final summaries of 1973 wheat acreage and yields (figures for 1972 are shown in parentheses): Acreage harvested was 53,875,000 acres for all wheat (284,000). This included 38,407,000 acres (34,840,000) of winter wheat, 2,974,000 acres (2,550,000) of durum, and 12,494,000 acres (9,894,000) of other spring wheat. Per acre yields were 31.8 bushels an acre (32.7) for all wheat. This included 33.1 bushels (34.0) for winter wheat, 28.5 bushels (28.6) for durum, and 28.6 bushels (29.0) for other spring wheat.

The small grain summary, in addition to wheat, covered results for oats, barley and rye. It showed:

Oats — Production was 663,860,000 bushels compared with 691,973,000 in 1972. Market value of the crop was $722,057,000 compared with $508,612,000 last year.

Barley — Production was 424,483,000 bushels compared with 423,461,000 last year.

Rye — Production was 26,398,000 bushels compared with 29,183,000 last year. Market value was $46,627,000 compared with $28,646,000.

No government support payments were made on oats and rye. Barley income, however, was supplemented by federal payments.

Effort By FDA Criticized

Washington (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has failed to protect the public against cancer-causing drugs used to fatten livestock, a House committee charged Monday.

The charge was made by the House Government Operations Committee in a report on an investigation of the use of various drugs to increase production of meat, milk and eggs.

Although the FDA has banned the use of diethylstilbestrol (DES) because of evidence that it can cause cancer, the committee report said other dangerous drugs continue to be used.

The committee also sharply criticized the FDA for "errors in ## Food Crisis, Higher Food Prices Ahead?

Louisville, Ky. (UPI) — The National Farmers Organization (NFO) opened its annual convention Monday with 10,000 farmers expected to attend and the energy crisis foremost on the agenda.

At a news conference Sunday, Oren Staley, of REA, Mo., NFO president, warned that government "incompetence" might result in food shortages and high food prices.

"If there are food shortages and skyrocketing food prices ahead, it will be the result of incompetent handling of the fuel situation," Staley said.

"Farmers must have fuel to produce. Trunkers, railroads, barge lines and processors must have fuel to move the commodities to the processing and distributing chain. If they are not given priorities for sufficient fuel to get the job done, and the fuel goes to weekenders, vacationers and other less necessary activities, there can be food shortages, cold houses and unnecessary high prices," Staley added.

He said he found the most alarming thing about the situation to be that "fuel allocation and management appear to be in the hands of 250 oil men plus a few White House attaches who have only recently learned, as the President did, that soybeans grow above the ground instead of underneath, like peanuts."

Staley noted that the NFO had built a nationwide grain marketing system, which currently includes 390-leased jumbo hopper rail cars to break the boxcar shortage bottleneck.

He added that NFO scheduled barges are now moving grain and soybeans at 11 barge points on the Ohio and Cumberland Rivers, plus 26 others on the Mississippi, Missouri and Columbia Rivers.

He noted that the NFO currently is selling more farm commodities than any other agricultural organization — including grain, milk and meat.

Staley will address the convention at a Wednesday night banquet.

On Thursday night, U.S. Sens. Marlow W. Cook, R-Ky., and Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., will address the group.

Committee May Do 100% Audit

... Sen. Long Says Inquiry May Take A Month

Washington (UPI) — Vice Chairman Russell B. Long, D-La., said Monday his Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation will probably conduct a complete audit on President Nixon's income tax returns.

Long said the committee will go beyond the two areas Nixon suggested it investigate and added the inquiry will probably take a month.

In releasing his financial statement Saturday, Nixon asked the committee to judge whether he was correct in claiming deductions of $576,000 for the gift of his vice presidential papers to the government and the nonpayment of a tax on capital gains on land adjoining his San Clemente, Calif., home.

Nixon has said he will abide by the committee's judgment. If the committee rules against him, he would be subject to payments, including interest, of close to $300,000, according to officials.

Earlier, Rep. Charles Vanik said Nixon's situation was evidence of the need for tax reform.

"There is something awfully wrong with a tax system that lets anyone making $200,000 a year or more pay a tax rate of 4% to 7.5%," said Vanik, D-Ohio, a member of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee and author of several unsuccessful tax reform proposals. "The President's case presents the best evidence yet of the need for long overdue tax reform."

Nixon issued financial statement Saturday showing that his net worth tripled over the 5½ years while he paid taxes at a rate of 7% — a lesser rate than a family of four earning $8,000 a year.

The White House announced

Monday it hopes to get other important presidential documents to Congress before adjournment, tentatively scheduled for Dec. 21. Deputy press secretary Gerald L. Warren said the other documents would cover campaign donations from the milk industry, the settlement of the ITT antitrust case and the activities of the White House plumbers squad.

Chairman Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., scheduled a meeting of the joint congressional committee Wednesday to make staff assignments for complying with the President's request for a review of his finances.

Firmer Obscenity Guidelines Possible

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court may be ready to offer more definite guidelines to states and local officials on what is punishable obscene.

The court issued a routine order Monday agreeing to hear arguments in a case from Georgia involving a theater operator found guilty of violating state obscenity law for showing the critically praised movie "Carnal Knowledge."

The action comes only a few months after the court rewrote obscenity law in a series of 5 to 4 decisions last term.

While those decisions strengthened the hand of prosecutors, Chief Justice Warren E. Burger said only material depicting "hard-core sexual conduct" should be subject to prosecution.

Beyond the question of whether the 1971 movie was punishable obscene, another issue raised by the latest appeal might have caught the justices' attention: The question of what community standards are to be applied in determining obscenity.

One of the key elements in the obscenity decisions last June was the removal of a requirement that a national standard be used in determining obscenity.

Opinion has been divided, however, over whether the court intended for statewide standards or those of individual communities to apply.

"Carnal Knowledge" was shown successfully in Georgia before police in 1972 arrested Billy Jenkins, owner of the Broad Avenue Cinema in Albany, Ga.

Jenkins was fined $750 and given 12 months' probation. He then launched the appeals that will bring him a Supreme Court hearing sometime later this term.

Jenkins' lawyers argued that the Georgia obscenity law, as approved by a 4 to 3 decision of the Georgia Supreme Court, equates sex with obscenity.

Georgia law also applies the standard of indecent exposure laws to the showing of motion pictures, they said.

While the Supreme Court never directly confronted the situation, past decisions would prohibit applying indecent exposure laws to motion pictures, they argued.

Finally, the lawyers asked the Supreme Court to make its own determination of whether "Carnal Knowledge" is obscene.

In other action, the court:

—Agreed to review the conviction of five former West Virginia officials charged with vote fraud and prosecuted under an 1870 civil rights law.

—Refused to interfere with lower court decisions that said the federal government — but not states — is liable for retroactive payment when eligible recipients are wrongfully refused food stamps.

—Declined to convene a three-judge federal panel to consider whether migrant workers can legally be excluded from coverage by federal and state laws protecting other workers.

Medicare, Medicaid Replacement To Be Sought

(c) Washington Star-News

Washington — President Nixon plans to ask Congress in January to set up a new national health insurance plan completely replacing Medicare and Medicaid, Caspar W. Weinberger, secretary of health, education and welfare, disclosed Monday.

The new insurance, Weinberger told reporters at the White House, would extend coverage to every American, regardless of income. The secretary gave no figures on the total cost.

In 1971, when Nixon first submitted a health insurance proposal, the plan would have excluded poorer persons who have no children, whether or not they were married, and unemployed persons who had had a history of poor health.

Medicare is the present insurance plan for the elderly and Medicaid is a state-federal program for the poor and near-poor. Instead of those plans, a single over-all plan would be adopted, Weinberger said.

He said the benefit package would be more comprehensive than that under previous proposed legislation, but did not give full specifics on how much broader the plan would be.

The proposals as outlined by Weinberger seemed to follow quite closely the outlines of a plan which his department had submitted to the White House in October.

Weinberger said Nixon was close to a final decision on the new plan, and added that it would be sent to Congress next month.

The secretary said the new administration plan would rely on the private health insurance industry, but would insist that companies provide a minimum set of benefits.

Most Americans would get their health insurance through their employers, with employers and employees sharing the cost. The self-employed would also be able to buy into the system. For those unable to pay the cost of premiums, the government would provide subsidies.

Weinberger said medical income-tax deductions would not be altered but that it was possible that health premium insurance costs now paid by employers could become subject to taxation for employees.

He said that, as the plan now stands, it would not require an increase in taxes.

However, he said, strong measures would be needed to prevent medical costs from soaring, as they did when Medicare went into operation in 1966.

Watergate Linked To President's Brothers, Hughes

Washington (UPI) — Senate investigators believe the Watergate break-in was an effort to determine what information the Democrats had linking President Nixon's two brothers with billionaire Howard Hughes.

Transcripts filed in U.S. District Court Monday advanced the theory that the break-in was related to a number of additional matters involving Hughes — including allegations that his associates wanted the federal government to stop nuclear testing in Nevada.

The transcripts, verbatim accounts of secret testimony given the Senate Watergate Committee by several Hughes aides, contrast sharply with the theory that the June 17, 1972, break-in was financed by Nixon reelection officials to learn about Democratic campaign strategy.

The transcripts were part of a suit to block further executive session interviews with 16 Hughes associates who have been subpoenaed by the committee.

The papers indicate Lawrence

F. O'Brien, Democratic national chairman at the time of the break-in, may have obtained information linking F. Donald Nixon and Edward Nixon with Hughes. O'Brien had been a partner in a west coast advertising agency that represented Hughes Tool Co.

The court papers also show that Hughes was tied to a "national security" matter which led Nixon to order his brother Donald Nixon's telephones to be tapped. Nixon has said the surveillance of his brother was for reasons of national security involving a country he would not name.

The committee lawyers, in one brief, said Donald Nixon "was the subject of electronic surveillance" because of his relationship to Hughes associates and a trip he made with Hughes' former associate John Meier to the Dominican Republic in 1969.

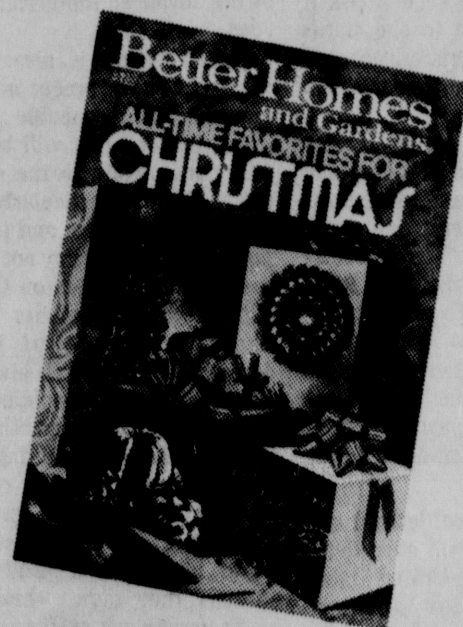

Elsewhere in the transcripts, committee lawyers questioned Hughes associates about Donald Nixon's helping Hughes set up mining rights in the Dominican Republic.

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

President Nixon has taken more than one calculated risk in his weekend disclosure of his personal financial records for the past few years. The White House itself noted that the disclosure will probably raise as many questions as it will answer because some of the areas involved are subject to opinion rather than fact.

In 1970, the President failed to pay any capital gains tax on a $117,370 profit from the sale of part of his San Clemente, Calif., property. From 1969 through 1972, the President took a $482,019 deduction on his income taxes for contribution to the government of his personal vice presidential papers.

Both of these matters will be submitted for a final determination on the President's liability to a Senate-House Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation. An adverse ruling by the committee could cost Mr. Nixon a quarter of a million in back tax and interest payments.

Even more difficult to determine is what the final judgment of the general public will be in regard to the disclosures by the President. It is not to the President's credit that his administration has sunk so low in credibility that this unprecedented action had to be taken.

While Mr. Nixon has profited personally no more than many past presidents, and less than some of them, from his high office, his many land deals will leave a lot of people wondering. Was his good fortune in these affairs a result of astute investment on his part or favored treatment at the hands of wealthy friends in high economic positions?

Beyond that will be the general reaction of people against the system that seems to sanction this kind of overnight conversion from relative economic obscurity to relative wealth. In this, Mr. Nixon just happens to serve as what might be called the bad example.

Certainly, we all know that the tax dodges used by the President, putting him roughly in the taxpaying category of $15,000-a-year net income, are used throughout the land. When a man can triple his net worth to more than a million dollars in three to four years time and pay taxes at the rate of $15,000-a-year income, the question shifts from a legal to a moral one.

Even if everything the President did was perfectly legal, many small taxpayers will be incensed at the fact that he could do this within the law. They will be incensed at the means by which high position and wealth continue to reap a multiplying gain.

The vast bulk of the President's net worth today is unearned net worth, in the sense that it does not represent gain from productive labor of any kind. Thus, the President stands as a classic example of the age-old struggle between productive and so-called non-productive generation of wealth.

We are not expert enough in economics, in any sense of the word, to fully understand much less to fully explain this situation but from a political point of view, it cannot be any kind of asset for the President. What he gains in public support for his candor, he is likely to lose in the impact of his financial figures upon the sensitivities of the average wage-earner.

The problem, of course, is not unique with President Nixon but one that runs to the core of our economic system. The answer is not a communist or socialist one, but rather, one of refining that system to the point where there is greater economic equality than exists today.

Even here we can find some tribute to our nation in the fact that it has managed far more equality than have most if not all other countries of the world. President Nixon may simply have arrived at the unfortunate point where there simply is no way he can win the confidence he seeks.

Success Equals Failure For Symphony Groups

WASHINGTON — The observation that beauty is only skin deep seems especially pertinent in the midst of the current concert season. For behind the magic of opening night and the majestic sweep of Mahler lie the chronic financial uncertainties that plague the nation's symphony orchestras.

Even the "major" orchestras — those with annual budgets of $1 million or more — have trouble making ends meet. According to the American Symphony Orchestra League, the average major orchestra carries a half-million-dollar deficit into each new season, despite charitable contributions.

So why not hold more concerts? Answer: Since orchestras can't pay their own way through ticket sales and program ads, large audiences simply mean larger deficits. For symphony orchestras, nothing fails like success.

Federal subsidies afford some relief, but not nearly enough. Although the National Endowment for the Arts has provided steadily increasing amounts of aid in recent years, public funds accounted for only 11% of the $70 million needed to operate the 28 major U.S. orchestras in the 1971-72 season.

The arts, moreover, are as sensitive to inflationary forces as any other sector of the economy. The average major symphony has 100 musicians and 40 administrative employees on its payroll — most of whom consider themselves underpaid. Rehearsal and transportation costs rise as steadily as the price of ground beef.

As the financial burdens of symphony orchestras fall increasingly on taxpayers, demands for more "popular" concert programs may mount. But to give in to such pressures could well prove self-defeating. If an orchestra must perform the score of Godspell in a parking lot to win greater public acceptance, it may win the battle for an audience only at the price of losing the war against mediocrity.

On the other hand, if an orchestra stubbornly relies on 19th-century crowdpleasers, it runs the risk of being labeled a museum-piece and unresponsive to more modern music.

Comparisons of the financial structures of American and European symphonies are not very helpful. For one thing, the symphonic tradition in Europe is roughly 250 years old — older by far than this country's. European orchestras, in addition, rely on state subsidies for almost all of their non-box-office funds.

And although many American musicians are paid twice as much as their European counterparts, they work twice as long.

The current musical season affords ample evidence of the American art world's financial crunch. Musicians of the New York City Opera went on strike for 24 days in September. The New York Philharmonic struck the same month and is still out. Dancers of the New York City Ballet, anticipating a strike by the company's orchestra, mounted a strike of their own on Nov. 13.

Nevertheless, such problems are not intractable. The Wolf Trap Center, in suburban Washington, D.C., has shown that a judicious mixture of federal support and private direction of the performing arts can work, and work well. If understanding and vision are allowed to prevail, public and private resources can make beautiful music together.

Ford Leads Poll

According to the Harris poll, Vice President Gerald Ford is not only a potentially strong contender for the 1976 GOP presidential nomination, he is the Number One choice of Republicans and Independents for that honor today.

Less than two months ago, Ford was the well-liked minority leader in the House, but he had no presidential ambitions and there was almost no chance that he would play even a small part in 1976 king-making.

No chance, that is, until Spiro Agnew's compliance with "the long-established pattern of political fundraising" in his state plucked Ford on top of the heap.

Harris found in a poll taken in mid-November that Republicans and Independents generally were pleased that Ford had been nominated for vice president and they expressed belief that he is qualified to be president. Further, he emerged as the preferred candidate for president on the Republican ticket in 1976, leading Gov. Reagan, Sen. Percy, Sen. Baker, former Treasury Secretary Connally, Gov. Rockefeller (in that order) and four other potential candidates on Harris' preference list.

Harris also found that Ford's "pattern of appeal is not dissimilar from that which President Nixon built up in the 1968 and 1972 elections. It is neither essentially 'conservative' nor 'liberal', but rather is more representative of the middle of Republican and Independent voter sentiment." The "remarkable showing," Harris said, can be traced to the highly positive reaction Ford created among the entire public by his performances during his hearing over his designation for the vice presidency.

Of course there is still just a little less than three years to go before election day. Ford may serve out his vice presidential term and go home to Michigan unbitten by the presidential bug. Or, as is looking to be more likely, he will become president before 1976. He then may decline to enter the nomination scrap and go home, convinced he had done his best serving his country during a very difficult period or he may succumb to White House fever.

But the remarkable thing is that in American politics, you can go from nowhere to somewhere with dizzying speed. Lightning has struck and given Ford some options he had no reason to expect he would have.

Death Penalty Controversy

North Carolina has determined that the U.S. Supreme Court's decision last year on the unconstitutionality of the death penalty should be interpreted as meaning that capital punishment is illegal where juries have the discretion to recommend either life imprisonment or death, but is legal where the death penalty is mandatory.

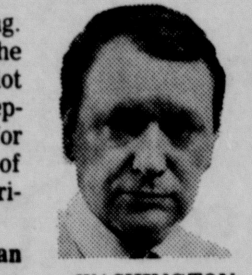

On Sunday in Tarboro, N.C., three young black men were sentenced to death in the gas chamber for the rape of a white woman. Would the penalty have been the same if three white men had been convicted of the rape of a black woman? Yes it would have, because there is a mandatory death penalty for rape in North Carolina.

Which leads us to the observation that if the people in a state want the death penalty, their lawmakers should be most merciful and wise in defining capital offenses.

Rape is not always an easily easily-proved offense. Culpability does not always rest with only one of the parties. Emotion can still lead to a conviction, especially in areas where racial divisions still run deep. Death, the irreversible penalty, should not be mandatory for rape convictions. There simply is just too much room for error.

The Supreme Court ducked the central issue of whether the death penalty is illegal because of its nature and finality. What its decision did is to lead to even greater abuses, potentially, of death penalty laws than were practiced before.

JAMES RESTON

Kissinger On The Mideast

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State Kissinger, who lost 12 members of his own family in Nazi concentration camps, now finds himself in the painful position of trying to persuade Israel and the friends of Israel in this country that any lasting peace in the Middle East depends on fundamental changes in Jerusalem's policy.

He is urging the Arab states to lift their oil embargo when the Middle East peace talks start in Geneva on Dec. 18, and meanwhile he is pressing the Congress to vote $2.2 billion for arms to the Israelis, but he regards a return to the situation that existed before the last Middle East war as a potential disaster for Israel and everybody else.

In this preliminary stage of the talks, he is avoiding specific recommendations. He is not stating any official American position on boundaries or guarantees or the future of Jerusalem, the Golan Heights, Sharm El-Sheik or any of the other critical questions. He is merely defining the problem as he sees it and making the following points in his talks with both sides, and with members of the Congress:

1. The problem now is quite different since the October war and the oil embargo. It cannot be solved by restoring the status quo or the military balance of power.

2. Going back to the positions of Oct. 6 is not in Israel's interests. The Israeli casualties were one out of 494 of their population; the Egyptian casualties, though much larger, only one out of 6,000. The Arabs are getting more sophisticated modern weapons from Moscow, learning how to use them, and denying Israel the advantage of fighting on only one front at a time.

3. Regardless of what the United States does, Israel's diplomatic isolation will increase unless there is a general settlement. Western Europe is more interested in its own economic stability than in the security of Israel. Black Africa has already broken with Jerusalem, and Japan and most of Asia will break diplomatic relations with Israel if the present trend continues. Without a fundamental change, Israel then will wind up in an international diplomatic ghetto, with the United States as its only friend.

4. Even in the United States, Israel's position will not be secure unless she changes her policy. Washington is committed to support the United Nations Security Council Resolution, 242, calling for Israel to give up most of the territory she conquered in the 1967 war, and it is now willing to guarantee formally the independence and territorial integrity of Israel if a new peace treaty can be arranged between the combatants.

5. But the United States is not prepared to risk war with the Soviet Union every time there is an Arab-Israeli conflict, unless there is a clear violation of some internationally guaranteed agreement. It is certainly not prepared to take such a risk if there is a return to the status quo and another crisis over some violation of an Israeli-Arab "cease-fire."

6. In fact, it is not at all clear that the Congress will continue to support more and more arms shipments to Israel in defense of the fragile political arrangements of the past. After the American Experience in Vietnam, it is not going to be easy to get another American guarantee, even for Israel, unless there is an agreed peace treaty between Israel and the Arab states.

7. If a general settlement can be negotiated, it will have to be guaranteed by the United States and other major powers. Kissinger agrees that Israel cannot be asked to give up conquered territory unless she has new recognized, secure, and guaranteed borders, and this may be Israel's last chance to make a peace that won't be imposed upon her.

This, as I understand it, is Kissinger's approach to the problem, at least the thesis he has been putting to leaders of the Congress and will undoubtedly be testing in his present trip to Europe and the Middle East.

Kissinger's assumption is that the Soviet Union will be more responsible if it is brought in on the Middle East negotiations. His argument to the Arabs is that they will lose support in the world if they use their oil

To Your Good Health

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Could you please give me an explanation of milk sugar? I get acute cramps when I eat anything containing milk or cheese. Are there any chemical names that I have to watch for which are commonly known as milk sugar? — Mrs. B. M.

Milk sugar is known chemically as "lactose," and that would be the key word to look for if you want to avoid it.

However, don't go jumping to any conclusions about your problem.

There are two possibilities that a little medical detective work should be able to ferret out. You might be allergic to the milk protein (casein) which is unrelated to lactose. Or you may be deficient in an enzyme called "lactase" which acts in breaking down the lactose in the intestine.

In either case, you probably would be placed on a milk-free diet. But you should not embark on this course without the advice of your doctor.

I always feel particularly sympathetic to this situation, especially when it occurs in little tykes for whom milk is so vital. Incidentally, these youngsters usually have to receive the calcium and protein from such sources as soybean milk. You might even try that, on advice of your doctor, and if it suits your taste buds, your problem may be licked.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have rheumatoid arthritis and wanted to move to Florida. I have relatives there and was told that the hot weather and swimming in salt water would help me. I have had opinions from two doctors. One is that "Florida would be fine," and the other that the humidity in Florida is too bad and "Arizona is the only place to go." I am so bewildered. — Mrs. C. D.

Warmer climates tend to be helpful for arthritis, but when anyone says that Arizona (or any other place) is the "only" place to go, I become pretty suspicious of the opinion.

Chances are that you'd find benefit in either place, but since you have relatives in Florida, why not try a visit there and see how it affects you?

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have developed hammertoes on the toes next to the big toes. My shoes seem plenty long and anyway I usually wear a loose sandal. I'm 69, retired and quite sedentary. Is there a cure or correction? I tried my own idea, a piece of tongue depressor under the toe and ball of the foot, taped to pull the toe flat. For a while I thought the toe was straightening out but maybe it's wishful thinking. If done regularly, might this straighten the toe? — S. B.

It might work in the early stages of a hammertoe, but keep in mind that hammertoe is a contraction in the tendon which pulls the toe up into the shape, so the length of your shoes isn't the whole story, nor even the most significant element, necessarily.

I see no objection to trying your method, but if it doesn't show very real progress in a short time (say a month) then I wouldn't expect success. So I'd suggest seeking a podiatrist or an orthopedist.

Reason for not letting it go too long is that bursitis is likely to develop on the top of the toe joint, compounding your problem.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I would like to know about tinnitus. What causes it and what can be done to stop it? I have been having a hissing in my ears for a year or two, or as I sometimes describe it, like crickets chirping. It is very annoying, especially when you are in bed and things are quiet except for the noise in your ears. — M.J.L.

Tinnitus is a technical term for ear noises of various hissing, chirping or other such sounds, so I prefer to call the problem ear noises rather than tinnitus. High blood pressure, ear defects and certain medications (including aspirin) are among the known causes; there are other causes that have not been established. Sometimes you can get rid of the noises and sometimes you can't. In the latter case, learning to have some competing sound makes them more tolerable.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My aunt has something called shingles. She is worried because people have told her many things about shingles. Is there a cure? Does it cause other things? Someone said it would cause blindness, also mental illness, and that people never get over shingles. Please explain. — B.S.L.

Everything she has been told is false — or at least everything that you have specified. It is very unkind to tell people such scare stories and I constantly wonder why folks do it, and whether they realize the misery they are causing.

If shingles breaks out near the eyes, special care has to be taken, but that isn't where shingles usually appears. It does not cause mental illness. People do get over it, but for some it takes longer than it does others.

Time Changes

David City, Neb.

We are farmers and I, too, am against DST as is "S.S." of Brainard. Anyone with an ounce of brains in his head knows that changing the clocks back now would mean burning the lights and fuel one hour longer in the a.m. before daylight, and what of the daylight hours in the afternoons? Most common ordinary folks at a steady job work eight hours by going to work at six or seven or eight o'clock, old time. New time means going to work at five, six or seven, which actually is old time. They are home at two, three or four o'clock new time, when daylight hours could be used.

A more sensible solution to the whole thing would be to start work at nine o'clock and off at five, which would put most working people at work in the daylight. But, no, that wouldn't work for the public employees, the big shots in our public offices. No, they have to have the daylight hours to think up some screwy idea on how to solve the energy crisis and the gas shortage. A few screw-ball meat-heads got together and voted DST. Same thing with the gas shortage. Don't worry, everything will work out to the benefit of these meat-heads and the hell with the common man.

This DST means my daughter who is to be at work at six a.m. and has 33 miles to drive before starting work has to be on the road at four o'clock, old time. She has to go out early enough to get her car started and leave earlier if the roads are icy. At that time in the morning, there is hardly any traffic. Where is she to go if she needs help?

DISGUSTED

The Donation

Ravenna, Neb.

I see where the 12th Nixon apostle has been eliminated since Watergate. History tells us it is normal to have one Judas out of 13. But in this "time in history," it seems we still have Judas while sacrificing the 12.

I am not writing this letter just to criticize but rather to provoke Congress into action. If the American people do not demand action legislatively to prevent a recurrence of lying, pay-offs, thefts, etc. by the office of the president, then our form of governing will not survive, because it has been proven that some people change after being elected to office and we are all humans and have inherited some of Adam's and Eve's weaknesses.

Even our own Senator Curtis whom I always considered honest seems to have sold his influence, vote, or whatever for a $5,000 donation from the dairy conglomerates. I am writing my senator and enclosing a $10,000 check signed by Santa Claus (if I can find him) for Christmas and asking for legislation to prevent the catastrophic conditions of the past from ever happening again.

While our elected officials are opening their brown Christmas envelopes with those huge donations from "Saint Conglomerates," I will be looking forward to my Christmas gifts in the form of harassment from the CIA, FBI and IRS and trust I will not be disappointed. PAUL LANDRIGAN

Add A Sweater

Lincoln, Neb.

As a student and resident of Lincoln, I am amazed at the inept attitudes taken by many individuals and institutions concerning the thermostat crisis.

Brandeis' "sweltering in a not-so-cool 78-degree setting" (as reported by The Star Dec. 6) is an example not only of the "degree" to which deviations occur in areas such as these but also clearly shows the inherent disregard and selfishness of our business community.

I share a four-bedroom house with three other individuals and winter for the last two years has been spent adding sweaters, drinking tea and hot chocolate, etc. to help bolster the 60 degrees the thermostat is set on. Our reasons stem from our economic potential, not so much from the political gesture.

Do You Remember?

Lincoln, Neb.

Could any of you out there remember the name of a TV program, a christian program, that had four handsome brothers who were ministers and they each had a beautiful wife who sang on their program?

It was "U.S.A. . . . something, but I can't remember.

There were also seven sons and the youngest had cerebral palsy. They lived on a farm at Springfield, Mo. I wonder what happened to the program?

I always used to watch it; then I went to California for 26 months. Now I am back living in 609 Mahoney Manor.

I never was so happy in my life as I am here. My apartment is all I need and no extra space to clean. We have the most wonderful people in the world in this building, so I feel I am closer to Heaven here than I ever was.

If anyone remembers this program, please contact me. MONICA A. KOONS

Hand-Outs

Lincoln, Neb.

Why all the government hand-outs? Please tell me why senior citizens living in federally subsidized housing units can afford to go on all the senior citizen cross-country bus trips, attend all the motion picture travelogues, take cabs to the beauty parlors, eat government-subsidized noon meals at reduced rates at our public school buildings, and then play cards or pool at one of our numerous recreation centers? These same people can't get up in time to attend church on Sunday morning — yet they never fail to play cards at the centers on Sunday afternoon!

Our home may not be much, but it was paid for with hard-earned money, pride and love! TAX-POOR HOME-OWNER

LIFE BEGINS AT FORTY:

Elder Is Alone And Happy

By ROBERT PETERSON
Most of us have grown up with the idea that it's miserable to be old and alone.

Yet many people are advanced in years and alone — and completely happy! Here's a letter just received from a man in Camden, N.J., who says he's 75: "I'm old and alone. But don't feel sorry for me. I love my status. No, I don't go to senior citizen clubs. Most of these are too far from my home and I don't need them anyway.

"I've got a little house of my own, enough income to feed myself and pay taxes with a little left over for occasional surprises. I've also got a wonderful dog that I can talk to and get no back talk.

"What are some of the joys of living alone? Well, I can do whatever I want. I had a good marriage and loved my late wife, but she was always telling me what to do. She said it was for my own good and I'm sure it was, but it also constituted a nagging rhythm which I don't miss at all.

"I get up when I feel like it, eat what I want for breakfast, and then putter around the house and yard. I dress as I please and I can go to bed in the afternoon or whenever I feel like it.

"If I want to mix a highball at 11 in the morning, there's no one to frown on it. If I forget to lock the door, there's no one to get upset since I don't worry about thieves. This used to drive my wife crazy as she was always scared of intruders.

"One of my pleasures is an old car that still runs and takes me down to the shore once a week, where I sometimes go skinny dipping. Then I love bus trips. Once a month I spend a few dollars on a Greyhound bus — just for a change of scene.

"Oh yes, I don't miss working a bit. I was a machinist for half a century — always kowtowed to the boss. That's what you're supposed to do and I didn't mind. But it's nice at last to be independent and take no back talk from anyone.

"Maybe you can judge from this letter that I'm a free man. I'm grateful for my many blessings. I feel I'm a lucky man to have lived this long, to be enjoying good health, and to feel complete happiness at an age when society at large is feeling sorry for me."

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast For Tuesday

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Handle current assignments, responsibilities. Don't feel you can neglect the basic for pie-in-sky future. Take one step at a time. If you do, starting now, you succeed.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Older relative confides problem. Be understanding without becoming inextricably involved. Aries, Libra persons could be featured. Finish what you start. Obtain valid hint from Aries message.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): New start or enterprise could also represent a financial burden. Key is to be aware of what you are getting into — review costs and returns. Leo, Aquarius persons could play prominent roles.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Follow through on lunch. Deal with one who teaches, is willing to share knowledge. Accent is on ability to be realistic. Accept responsibility. Mate, partner may appear depressed. That's no reason to compound error. You can be cheerful without being foolish.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Events may appear scrambled. What was settled is moved. One who was reliable "drops out." Maintain your own balance. Study Cancer message. PUT out feelers — expand horizons without scattering forces.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Study fine points. Read between the lines. Take nothing for granted. Some friends express conservative views. If patient, you gain. Otherwise you create unnecessary opposition.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Be ready for change, travel, variety. Gemini, Virgo persons could be in picture. Perceive and analyze. Piece together bits of information for complete story.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Soft-sell approach is likely to achieve best results. Taurus, Libra individuals are in picture. Take long range view. Be aware of potential. One who leans on you is actually a secret admirer. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): See through sham, deliberate or otherwise. Insist on factual information. Discard rumors. Money is involved and so is mate, partner. Someone who really wish you well might also be misinformed. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): An apparent setback could eventually result in circumstance which aids rather than detracts. You are given opportunity to hand-die added responsibility. Pressure mounts but so do rewards. Be wary of legal complications. Stick to familiar ground.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Finish rather than begin — get loose ends together. Aries, Libra persons figure in important ways. Get routine tasks out of way. If you neglect essentials, you pay price. Know it and act accordingly. Check calls, correspondence.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Relationships are intensified. Nothing now is apt to happen halfway — it's all or nothing. One who makes promises is seeking attention. Young persons are in picture. Make some concessions but know when to draw line.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are intuitive, a natural teacher. You also are unorthodox and pursue subjects off the mainstream. In September, you glimpsed rare insight to yourself. You might interpret it as a spiritual revelation. You earn more money in 1974. If single, you probably will marry. # Monopolies Blamed For High Food Bills

The New York Times

Washington — An official of the Federal Trade Commission told a Senate subcommittee Monday that monopolistic practices were a significant cause of recent increases in the costs of the nation's food.

"Food price increases are equivalent to a regressive tax which transfers income from the poor, the old, racial minorities and other persons on the bottom of the socio-economic ladder," said Russell C. Parker, assistant to the director of the Federal Trade Commission's Bureau of Economics. He added that "if that transfer of income is to holders of monopoly power it is particularly repugnant."

The hearing on "corporate giantism and food prices" also heard a call by A. C. Hoffman, a retired vice president of the Kraft Foods Company, for intervention by the government to stop monopolistic trends, as well as demands by the Food Action Campaign, a coalition of consumer-oriented organizations, for both legislative and administrative action.

Jim Hightower, campaign coordinator, former Sen. Fred R. Harris, D-Okla., and Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., all asserted that increasing monopolistic power in the food industry threatened to create food problems even more serious than the current energy crisis.

The hearing focused on the effects of "concentration" in the industries that constitute the food chain, from the fields to the supermarket. A concentrated industry, also known as an

Sen. Saxbe Nominated

Washington (UPI) — President Nixon Monday formally nominated Sen. William B. Saxbe, a maverick Republican, as U.S. attorney general.

Nixon sent Saxbe's appointment to the Senate immediately after signing a bill intended to clear a constitutional obstacle barring the Ohio senator from serving in the Cabinet post.

In 1969, Saxbe voted for a bill which raised the pay of the attorney general from $35,000 to $60,000 a year. The Constitution forbids a member of Congress from taking a post for which he voted a pay increase during his term.

The bill would overcome that obstacle by allowing Saxbe to serve at the old $35,000-a-year salary until Jan. 1, 1975, when his Senate term would expire.

"oligopoly," is one in which a few firms share a significant portion of a market. Parker explained:

"When concentration is great enough — this is when all firms can act without fear of effective dissent in achieving joint profit maximization — monopoly exists. The several firms acting together in this fashion are generally referred to as participating in a shared monopoly."

Asserting the biggest reasons for recent food price increases had been "the same factors causing the general inflation in the economy," in addition to others such as devaluation of the dollar and the sale of wheat to the Soviet Union, Parker said:

"Notwithstanding these factors primarily responsible for recent increases, I believe that a very significant cause of high food prices is monopoly and oligopoly in U.S. food industries."

According to his commission's statistics, he said, nearly 80% of all food manufacturing industries "would be called oligopolistic" under a generally accepted definition.

Recalling that 50 large companies had owned half of all food manufacturing assets in 1965, he said that concentration had continued to increase to the point where "I estimate that the current 50 largest companies may account for close to 60% of total food manufacturing assets."

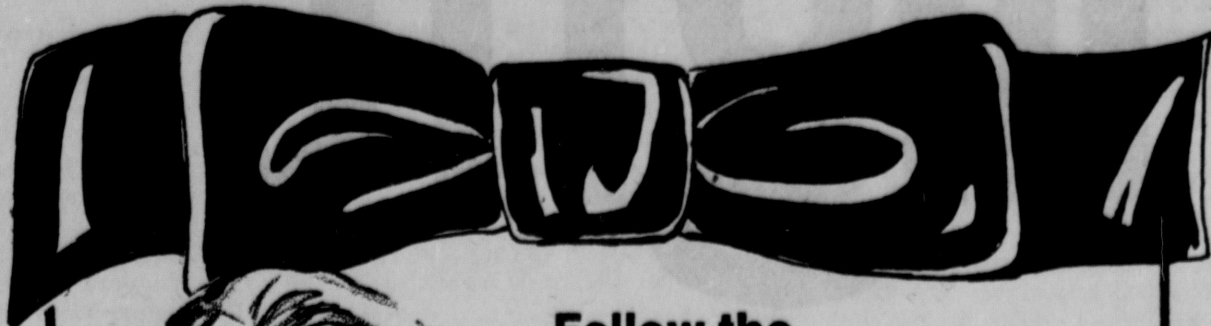

Those same companies receive a still higher percentage of profits, the economist said.

The same sort of increasing concentration has occurred in food retailing, accompanied by increasing margins between wholesale prices and those paid by consumers, Parker said. He suggested, however, that recent actions against large mergers may have caused a slight reduction in the wholesale-retail margin.

Parker said a principal problem of concentration in the food industry is that it creates conditions that make price collusion, both tacit and explicit, possible. He cited cases in Washington state and the Baltimore area where conspiracies had cost consumers tens of millions of dollars in excessive bread prices alone.

The former executive of Kraft Foods, A. C. Hoffman, said, "The food industries show the same characteristics of corporate giantism found in most other parts of the economy, for the same reasons, and with even greater potential to the public because of the critical importance of food."

Independents Hurt, Majors' Profits Up

kept their refineries running below the level of the same period of 1971.

As a result, supplies of gasoline and heating oil dropped below their levels of a year before.

Refinery runs were sharply increased in the next five months, largely to head off a summer gasoline shortage. But this meant that heating fuel was scarce by fall.

And, as was mentioned earlier, when the government appealed for full use of increased import allowances and maximum refinery output to avoid a winter heating oil crisis, the major companies did not comply.

When the crunch came, they accelerated refinery operations to take up the heating oil slack, but this, naturally, got them behind in gasoline production, so that shortages of gasoline in the summer of 1973 became inevitable.

Maximum Needed

Industry spokesmen point out that, despite less than maximum refinery operations for much of last year, over-all fuel production increased over the previous two years. But, as both industry and government projections had indicated, demand was increasing too fast for anything but maximum output to fill the need.

Meanwhile, a number of the majors were continuing the process, begun some years before, of shutting down marketing units in certain areas, apparently to withdraw from their least profitable operations.

Industry spokesmen insist they were merely liquidating "uneconomic" operations. But to some students of the oil business, it looked suspiciously as if the big oil companies were carving up the domestic market to share among themselves.

A Federal Trade Commission report on the industry completed last summer explained it this way: "All the majors can increase their regional market concentration simultaneously by pulling out of markets where their share is lower than their national average and selling their operations to those majors who remain. To do so, they must prevent the farther entry and expansion of independent marketers. Ultimately, the only way to contain or reduce the independents' market shares is through monopoly power at the refining or crude pipeline stages. Independents Cut

In fact, since the onset of the shortages, the majors have increasingly been telling independent refiners and marketers they could not supply them with either crude oil or refined products because they needed all they had for their own operations.

Independent refiners have been forced to operate well below their normal capacity.

The impact on independent marketers has been devastating. Hundreds of independent gasoline stations have shut down because of a lack of supply. Many that stayed open were forced to raise prices, wiping out their competitive edge.

And the majors increasingly opened up so-called "fighting brand" stations which emulate the high-volume, low-overhead, discount approach pioneered by the independents.

Controls, Demand Cited

For the most part, administration officials have agreed with the oil companies that price controls coupled with increased demand were the principal immediate causes of the shortages of last winter and spring.

Nevertheless, the Cost of Living Council has refused to permit across-the-board increases.

The COLC concluded last winter, according to Lincoln, that "the oil industry can make a profit on current prices of (heating oil) and they know it."

So the industry's giants have failed to get the price increases they have longed for.

Objectives Reached
But they have accomplished a number of other objectives.

The Alaska pipeline has been cleared for construction by congress and environmental roadblocks — to offshore drilling, for example — seem about to fall.

The pesky independent companies have been gravely weakened.

And the majors' sagging profit picture of the late Nineteen-Sixties and early Seventies had taken a dramatic turn for the better.

None of the top five oil companies has reported third-quarter profit increases of less than 50% over last year. Gulf, the third-leading oil producer, says its profits are up 91% from the third quarter of last year.

Conspiracy Charged
There are some who believe the major oil companies conspired to bring about these results. Indeed, the Federal Trade Commission, as a result of the previously mentioned study of the industry finished last summer, has filed a huge anti-trust case against the top eight oil companies accusing them of collusion to monopolize the industry.

The FTC's central allegation is that the eight oil majors have "maintained and reinforced a noncompetitive market structure in the refining of crude oil into petroleum products." They have done this, the FTC charges, by — among other things — "pursuing a common cause of action to abuse and exploit the means of gathering and refineries... participating in restrictive or exclusionary transfers of ownership of crude oil among themselves and with other petroleum companies... using their vertical integration to keep profits at the crude level artificially high and profits at the refining level artificially low... accommodating the needs and goals of each other in the production, supply and transportation of crude oil to the exclusion or detriment of independent refiners."

The commission also charges that similar practices have given the eight firms "monopoly power" over the marketing of petroleum products. The industry has vigorously denied the charges. The case will take years to litigate.

Project Opposed By Wildlife Group

Grand Island (UPI) — The Nebraska Wildlife Federation has come out in opposition to the Mid-State Project and urged that it be abandoned.

The federation said that the project is designed to take water out of the Platte River and into reservoirs for irrigation purposes and apparently to arrest the declining water table.

However, the federation said it "strongly opposes" such a move because it would disturb the relationship between natural resources and wildlife in the area, particularly the migration habits of the Sandhill crane.

The opposition resolution was one of four measures approved at the federation's annual meeting in Grand Island during the weekend.

In addition, the federation called for the remaining wild portion of the Niobrara River to be granted the protection necessary for its continued existence as a natural area. The federation said the area should be designated a wild or scenic river.

The federation said Nebraska should "investigate and consider" the establishment of additional parks and recreation areas in more heavily populated areas of the state.

State and federal efforts were praised by the federation for emphasis and priority given in establishing designated wilderness areas in portions of the Valentine and Crescent Lake National Refuge Areas.

The federation also announced a statewide public information campaign that will help make Nebraskans "more aware of the need for conservation practices." Included in the campaign is a high school essay contest designed to get ideas of youth into the state's conservation program.

Only UNL's Ag College Shows Enrollment Gain

By United Press International

The college of Agriculture was the only one at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln to show an enrollment increase for the fall semester, university officials said Monday.

Enrollment at the college was up 4%, with 42 of the 56-student increase being women.

The office of resident instructor reported that the College of Agriculture undergraduate enrollment climbed from 1,393 to 1,449 with 355 seniors, 364 juniors, 305 sophomores, 419 freshmen and 6 unclassified students.

The increase in undergraduate women went from 76 in 1972 to 118 this fall. The majority of the women have entered the fields of natural resources, animal science, veterinary medicine, food science and technology, forestry and horticulture, and recreation resource management.

University officials said one possible incentive attracting transfers and freshmen is the large number and value of scholarships and low interest loans available to College of Agriculture students.

Ag college scholarships normally top the $40,000 mark.

Ervin Forsees Ban On Large Outlays

Las Vegas, Nev. (UPI) — Sen. Sam Ervin, chairman of the Watergate Committee, said his investigation probably will result in laws against disbursement of large amounts of cash contributions during political campaigns.

Dog Backs Car, Bumps Second Auto

Aurora — "Reggie," a German shepherd dog, was identified as the "driver" of a car involved in a two-car crash on the parking lot of a supermarket here. A 1969 model car belonging to Steven D. Inness of Bridgeport was parked in the lot with its motor running. Somehow, the police report shows, the Inness dog "Reggie" engaged the gears causing the car to back into a car with Betty L. VanLuchene of Aurora as driver, but halted at the time of impact. Police estimated damage to the VanLuchene car under $250; the Inness auto escaped without a scratch.

Mrs. Creigh Given Award of Merit

Hastings (AP) — A Hastings woman, Mrs. Doroth Weyer Creigh, was given the 1973 Award of Merit by the American Association for State and Local History. The Nashville, Tenn., group honored Mrs. Creigh for her two volume history of Adams County, publisher last year as part of the county's centennial observance. The award was presented at Hastings College by Charles Osborne of the Adams County Historical Society.

Dannebrog Span Replacement Pondered

Dannebrog (AP) — Officials are debating whether the collapsed approach to the Dannebrog bridge spanning the South Loup River should be temporarily replaced by a dirt approach. The rickety, one-lane bridge is scheduled to be replaced next spring. It collapsed last week, the third time in four years, when a semi truck loaded with alfalfa pellets rode across it. The State Patrol said the truck driven by Roger D. Kenaston, 19, of Ainsworth, weighed more than 38 tons. Capacity of the bridge is 15 tons.

Malkowski Resigns Fontenelle Post

Omaha (AP) — James M. Malkowski, executive director of the Fontenelle Forest nature center, has resigned. No reason was given for the resignation. His departure follows resignations of the center's three other naturalists — Curtis Abdouch, Charles Gibilisco and Norman Kopeck — since the first of September. Malkowski has held the Fontenelle post since 1966.

Clarks, Miller Farm Families Honored

Grand Island (UPI) — Two Nebraska farm families were among those receiving awards during the Central Platte Natural Resources District banquet here. The Augie Ebers family of Clarks and the H. H. Bentley family of Miller were chosen as the honor farm families. The Ebers were cited for conservation measures on their 2,600 acres farm in Merrick County, while the Bentleys were honored for conservation measures on their 6,000 acres of land near Miller.

Two Names Added To State Road Toll

By The Associated Press

Two more names were added to Nebraska's 1973 highway traffic death toll Monday, bringing the year's total to 413, compared with 450 on the same date a year ago.

The name Raymond E. Timothy, 67, of Falls City, was added to the list Monday. He died Saturday of injuries sustained when he was struck by a pickup truck Oct. 30 while directing traffic at the scene of an accident. Timothy worked part-time as a deputy sheriff and as a Falls City policeman.

The State Patrol said one person was killed Monday in a one-car accident on Interstate 80, about 5.2 miles west of Odessa. The victim was Ralph A. Carusona, 18, of Babylon, N. Y. The patrol said Carusona, who was alone in his westbound car, apparently fell asleep. The car then went into the median, rolled and came to rest upright in the eastbound passing lane. Carusona was thrown from the vehicle and was found beneath the car by an eastbound trucker about 1:45 a.m.

NRD Meeting Scheduled On Election Subdistricts

Valparaiso — Community leaders and citizens are urged to attend a meeting here Dec. 17 to discuss election subdistricts for the Lower Platte South Natural Resources District (NRD).

The meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. at the Town Hall.

Harold Sieck, NRD chairman, explained that the NRD will be divided into 10 election subdistricts. Two members will be elected from each subdistrict in the November, 1974, general election, and one member will be elected at-large to form a 21 member board of directors.

"Data regarding population, valuation, existing and proposed works of improvement will be made available at this meeting to assist in determining subdistrict boundaries," Sieck said. "Information and recommendations will be passed on to the NRD board of directors."

Planning and Operations Area I of the NRD, upon which this meeting is centered, encompasses Hickman, Denton, Sprague, Martel, Kramer, Seward, Valparaiso, Raymond, Malcolm, Brainard, Loma and surrounding rural areas, Julius Hellerich, area chairman, said.

Arbuckle Freed On Gun Charge

John Twobirds Arbuckle, executive director of United Indians of Nebraska, was free on $3,000 bond Monday after he was charged in Lancaster County Court Saturday with being a felon in possession of a firearm.

Police arrested Arbuckle early Saturday morning after he allegedly came to the apartment of a woman acquaintance and pointed a gun at a man in the apartment.

Arbuckle, 31, of 2635 N. 50th, is presently on probation from U.S. District Court after pleading guilty to four counts of federal firearm violations.

Help us feed the needy this Christmas

Bring in a can of food, it's a good time to share

This year, Kentucky Fried Chicken and The Salvation Army have joined together to help make this a merrier Christmas for needy families in Lincoln.

At each participating Kentucky Fried Chicken store you'll find a collection barrel in which you can deposit cans of food. Then The Salvation Army will distribute it to those who need it most.

So, please help us fill our "holiday kettles" to the brim. You'll give someone a Merry Christmas. And you'll give yourself a Merry Christmas just knowing you helped.

Wheat Crop Totals

94 Million Bushels

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's annual crop report for small grain released Monday placed Nebraska's winter wheat production at 94 million bushels, Douglas Murfield, director of the State-Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics said.

That averaged out at 35 bushels an acre, two less than a year earlier. The production from the 2,680,000 acres planted to wheat was one bushel an acre ahead of 1972.

Nebraska's record winter wheat production of 113,355,000 bushels was set in 1958. The best per acre record of 42 bushels was established two years ago. Nebraska this year produced 22 million bushels of oats, an average of 48 an acre, down one bushel from 1972.

The rye crop averaged 20 bushels, four fewer than in 1972, and totaled 1.8 million bushels.

The barley crop averaged two bushels an acre more than last year at 36 an acre. The total barley production was 1.2 million bushels.

The final 1973 corn, grain sorghum and soybean figures will be released by the department about mid-January, Murfield said.

All But 5% Of State's Corn Crop In The Bin

All but 5% of Nebraska's corn for grain has been harvested — the normal amount for this time of the year, but ahead of the 75% in the bins a year ago.

This was the word Monday from the State-Federal Bureau of Agricultural Statistics in its weekly crop-weather report, which pointed out that harvesting had been hindered by snow and wet fields.

Moisture content of the corn being harvested is 19%, one point above a week earlier but three points below a year ago, the bureau said.

Winter wheat is in good condition, according to the bureau. "Warm weather of the previous week has increased growth, giving good cover for winter," the report stated.

Most areas report adequate surface and subsoil moisture.

Mud continues to bother cattle in feedlots, but most livestock are reported in good condition. Supplies of range, pasture, hay and forage are "average to above average" the bureau said.

GOP Chief Raps Exon

Republican State Chairman Bill Barrett of Lexington Monday charged that Democratic Gov. J. James Exon is "a master of management."

In a press release, Barrett said rent for some state offices in Omaha has been raised 100%. Two weeks ago, he said, it was learned that the state will pay $108,696 in added rent for some state agencies housed in a Lincoln office building.

"How many more rabbits will Gov. J. J. Exon pull out of his political hat regarding rental provisions for state agencies in privately owned buildings?" Barrett asked.

Omaha Police, Fire Union Pact Okay Tentative

Omaha (AP) City Council President Robert Cunningham said Monday the city has reached a tentative contract agreement with the police and firemen's unions.

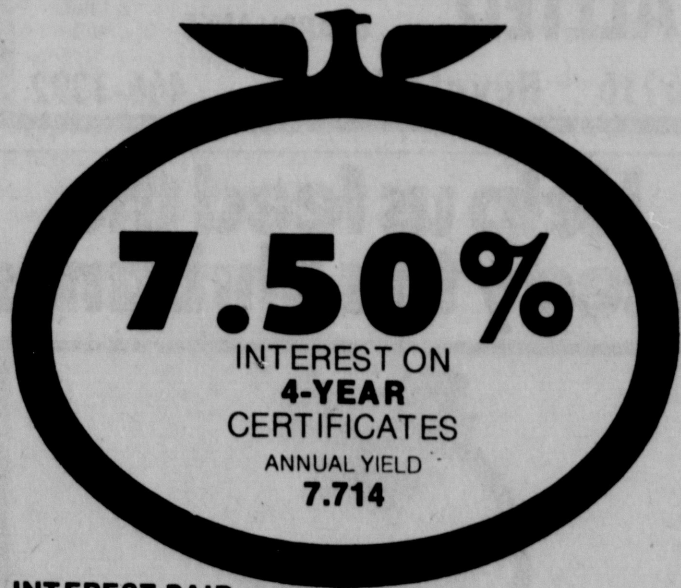

Cunningham said the contract calls for a 5.9% wage increase for police and firemen and increased insurance benefits.

The contract will be presented to the city council and to the unions for ratification, Cunningham said.

Railroad Attorneys Rap Car Plan

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

A battery of attorneys representing railroads operating in Nebraska presented arguments against the boxcar distribution formula proposed by the Nebraska Public Service Commission at a special hearing Monday.

The hearing was ordered by John Swanson, chairman of the commission, after he discovered that a ruling by the commission — to repeal its order requiring railroads to allocate cars to customers on the basis of the car use by the customer during the past three years — was illegal because a hearing was required before the rule could be repealed.

The repeal had been opposed by Swanson and Commissioner Eric Rasmussen, who had charged that the action was illegal and done under pressure from the railroads.

The attorneys representing the railroads made a number of statements referring to Supreme Court cases on the national and state level indicating that the power to allocate cars to customers rested with the Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC) and not with the Nebraska Public Service Commission (NPSC).

The attorneys for the railroads cited the court decisions as evidence that the NPSC lacked the authority to issue the rules. John Burchell of Omaha, representing the Union Pacific, suggested that the ICC was planning to issue its own rules which would supersede the state rules anyway.

Richard Knudsen of Lincoln, speaking for Burlington Northern and the Rock Island

Railroads, described the rules as "vague and unworkable."

Knudsen also suggested that the rules would waste fuel. "It doesn't make sense for the railroads to move empty cars across the state to meet a regulation of even distribution of cars. We can live with a guideline but a rigid rule is quite another thing," he said.

Harry Otis, representing the Chicago and North Western Railroad, noted that the cars in question are of different sizes. "Under your rules we cannot apportion cars to customers on the basis of their different size," he said.

Otis predicted that confusion would result if states first issued car apportionment rules that then were superseded by the ICC.

R. A. Skochdopole, representing the Missouri Pacific, complained that the rules prevented the railroads from providing cars to new shippers, small shippers and to elevators that had expanded their capacity. Rasmussen replied, "It touches my heart to see how concerned the railroads are getting over the small shipper since we proposed these rules."

Skochdopole said, "The railroads are trying to serve everyone and to move as much grain as possible. I think the answer is to encourage the ICC to establish its own rule for the railroads to follow instead of each state developing its own rules."

A spokesman for the NPSC said no decision had been reached by the board on the car allocation question Monday.

VA Receives Early Present; $10,000 Check

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Veterans Administration has received an early Christmas present — a $10,000 check sent by an anonymous donor.

The VA often gets donations, most of the givers identified and from organizations, but the $10,000 is the largest anonymous amount VA officials can remember.

The unsigned letter dated Nov. 25 was accompanied by a cashier's check dated Nov. 30. The letter said:

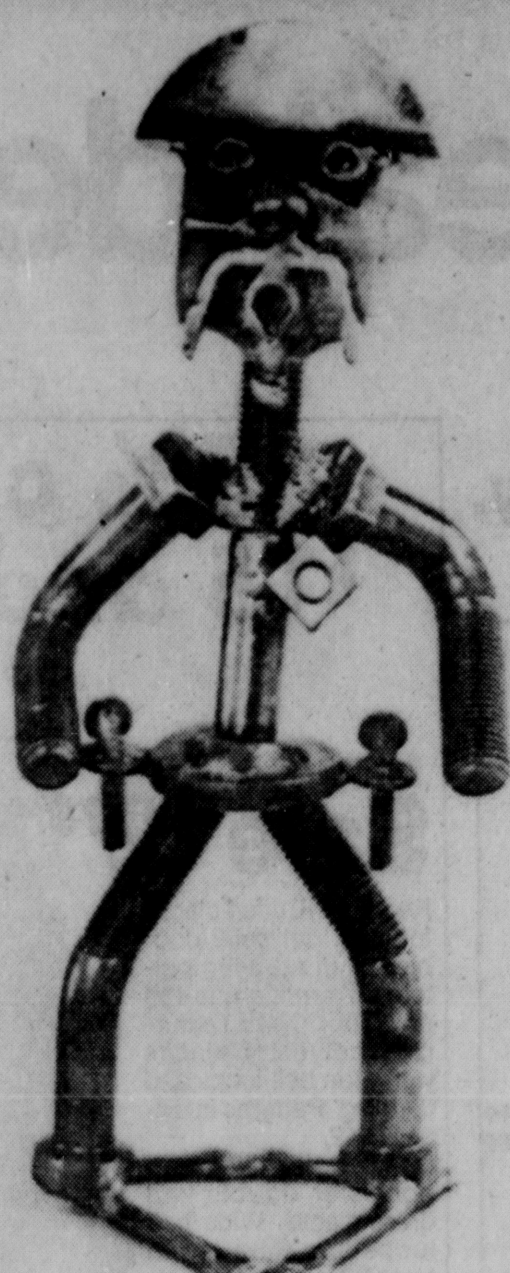

"Gentlemen: Please accept this anonymous contribution in appreciation of the fine work the Veterans Administration is doing."

VA Administrator Donald E. Johnson said he is designating that the money go for the welfare of patients in VA hospitals, for things appropriated funds do not provide.

The VA, wanting to help the donor keep his identity anonymous, preferred to say only that the gift came "from a small Midwestern town."

Snowblower Stolen

Bill Introduced By Thone To Protect Tax Returns

Washington (UPI) — Rep. Charles Thone, R-Neb., said Monday he has introduced a bill "to ensure that snoopers bureaucrats in all federal agencies are not pawing over the federal income tax returns of individuals."

In his weekly newsletter, the congressman said, "Every American taxpayer has the right to expect that his or her federal income tax return will be treated with complete confidentiality" and that some changes in the laws are needed to guarantee that right.

Under present law, an individual's income tax return is a public record. "My bill would change that law, so that it would state that an income tax return is a confidential and private record," Thone said.

Under current law, a president can by executive order turn over any income tax returns to any government agency. Thone said his proposal would take away that power "and lay down strict rules and conditions for inspection of any income tax records. Most of the exceptions listed have to do with tax administration and law enforcement."

Thone said earlier this year he and other members of Congress were successful in killing an executive order that would have permitted the Department of Agriculture access to all farmers' returns.

"It was important that we defeated that proposal because it was the first time that an administration had ever proposed to release all the returns of all people engaged in a single occupation," Thone said. He added that the "general deterioration" of privacy of individuals concerns him and that he has joined in introduction of a resolution to create a congressional committee to consider the problem of maintaining individual privacy.

$2.5 Million School Bond Issue Is To Go Before Wymore Voters

Wymore (UPI) — Voters in the Wymore Southern School District will decide a $2.5 million bond issue Tuesday.

The money would be used to construct a building to house kindergarten through 12th grade students.

The board of education called a special meeting Saturday night to consider postponing or canceling the special election. However, a motion to terminate the referendum failed on a 4-2 vote.

Those in favor of a new building argued that the voters of the district should decide via the ballot box whether it should be built.

Those opposed said the project could be more than the school district can afford because their taxes are based on high-priced farm land.

They said rural property pays 52.9% of the taxes raised to support the school district, and in addition, the rural area pays a portion of the personal property and motor vehicle taxes in the district.

If the bond issue is approved, the school tax would be increased 17 mills for a 25-year period, officials said, bringing the district's mill levy to 64.46 mills.

Sulphur Price Up

Calgary, Canada (AP) — Canadian Occidental Petroleum Ltd., and its affiliate, Petrogas Processing Ltd., said they are giving notice to their North American customers of a $3 per ton price increase for western Canadian sulphur.

Little Aid Said Going To State's Townships

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—An authority on the five-year, $30.2 billion dollar federal revenue-sharing program says some of the money spent in Nebraska may have little impact.

Kenneth S. Colburn of Washington, D. C., said "what is striking in terms of Nebraska is the very small amounts of money that go to township governments."

Colburn, deputy director of research for the Joint Center for Political Studies, told a symposium at the University of Nebraska at Omaha Saturday that "a few hundred dollars doesn't have any impact."

He said it would be possible for the legislature to alter the formula under which revenue-sharing funds are distributed.

State Sen. Glenn Goodrich of Omaha said there is little likelihood of change in the revenue-sharing program, based on population, tax effort and relative per capita income.

Goodrich said the state has committed $26 million of the total $72 million it expects to receive for the five-year period ending in 1976.

He said $20 million has been committed to state aid to education and $6 million to various capital projects, including some in the university system.

North Central Area Aid Request Okayed

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Dave Martin announced Monday that Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz has approved an application for Resource, Conservation and Development (RCD) assistance for north central Nebraska.

The district includes six counties — Brown, Boyd, Cherry, Holt, Keya Paha and Rock. Martin said the sponsors are five natural resource districts, six county governments and 20 cities and villages.

He said out-migration from the area was excessive from 1950-1970 and the population now totals about 31,000 persons.

Martin said an overall planning program is needed which would include land conversion; acceleration of soil surveys; an analysis of irrigation systems and their place in agriculture; development of recreation and tourism potential; and new employment opportunities and an increase in family incomes.

Also needed, he said, are additional medical facilities, training in specialized fields, market outlets and technical assistance and cost sharing.

The 3rd District congressman said project objectives include:

- Improved land use planning and zoning.
- Providing for watershed protection, flood prevention, and drainage assistance.

—Accelerated planning and conservation treatment of land.

—Providing for sustained profitable production and marketing of agricultural production.

—Encouraging new industries and providing training for specialized jobs.

—Improving hospitals, schools, water and sewer systems, rural housing and roads.

—Supporting planning commissions and encouraging the formation of additional ones.

"Local sponsors will provide leadership with the cooperation and assistance of local state and federal agencies in carrying out plans for meeting the objectives," he said.

Abandonment Suspect Said Now In Hospital

Lancaster County Atty. Paul Douglas said Monday that the suspect in the abandonment of a baby at the Statehouse Thursday was in a hospital and would not face charges until she had recovered.

Douglas said he expected her to be released "within the next day or so."

He said he would consult with her attorney before he determined what charge she would face. Her name, the name of the hospital or the nature of her illness were not released.

The newly born baby girl was found Thursday afternoon in a first floor restroom in the Statehouse. The suspect was arrested Friday.

Ziebarth Files For Democratic Nomination From Third District

Wayne W. Ziebarth, a 52-year-old Wilcox farmer-banker, Monday filed with the secretary of state's office for the Democratic congressional nomination from the Third District.

In a prepared statement, Ziebarth indicated his campaign will stress economic issues and honesty in government.

"All sectors in America are crying for some stability in our economy," Ziebarth said. "This along with honesty and integrity will be the issues of the campaign."

Ziebarth will be running for the seat held by Rep. Dave Martin who is facing the prospects of being challenged in his own Republican primary. Martin was first elected to the House of Representatives in 1960.

Ziebarth is a former state senator who gave up his seat in 1972 in an unsuccessful attempt to win the Democratic primary for the U.S. Senate.

Thus far, Ziebarth is the first candidate to file for Congress. The deadlines for filing for the May 4 primary are March 5 for incumbents and March 15 for challengers.

Ziebarth pledged to limit his tenure in Congress, if elected, to no more than four years (two terms) as a means of encouraging "more truthfulness in government as well as preventing the incumbent from losing touch" with his district.

Mrs. Dahlquist Files For Demo Secretary Of State Nomination

Catherine Dahlquist, a long-time Democratic Party organizer from Omaha, filed Monday for the Democratic nomination as secretary of state.

Mrs. Dahlquist accused incumbent Secretary of State Allen J. Beermann of an "irresponsible and politically-motivated" approach to the office.

While asking for a 40% increase in his office's budget, Mrs. Dahlquist said Beermann as a member of the State Board of Equalization voted to cut the state's income tax over the protests of Democratic Gov. J. James Exon.

"All state appropriations, particularly for education, are jeopardized by this opportunistic action in an election year," Mrs. Dahlquist said. "He has underestimated the intelligence of the Nebraska voter."

"I believe this is a time of great concern and the secretary of state's office needs a new image and a new kind of leadership — one which would propose constructive alternatives rather than blind opposition to fiscal responsibility."

Mrs. Dahlquist has served as Douglas County chairwoman, and Second Congressional District chairwoman and is presently treasurer of the Douglas County Democratic Central Committee. For the past eight years, she has been self-employed in real estate investment and management. Her husband is an Omaha fireman.

The primary election will be May 14.

Curtis 'Not In Favor' Of 'A Television Show'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Nebraska Sen. Carl Curtis said Monday he has no intention of making the joint House-Senate committee on President Nixon's finances into another Watergate probe.

Curtis, who is a member of the committee created this weekend to review donations of Nixon's vice presidential papers, said, "I would not be in favor of us trying to rival the Watergate committee and put on a television show."

Curtis indicated that his staff would review the vice presidential papers.

Curtis said members of other administrations have handled their papers in the same fashion, and it is "clearly legal for Nixon to do the same thing."

His comments followed remarks by Democratic Sen. Russell Long, also a member of the committee, who said Monday that he expected to call witnesses and fully investigate the donation of the papers.

Wife Charged For Shooting At Her Husband

Annette Troy, 27, of 3237 Doane, was charged in Lancaster County Court Monday with shooting with intent to kill, wound or maim in connection with an incident involving her husband Sunday night.

According to police reports the woman fired a .22-caliber pistol at her husband, John Troy Jr., as he was sitting in a chair in their home. Police said the bullet struck the arm of the chair and caused only minor injuries to Troy's arm.

Preliminary hearing on the charge was set for Dec. 20. Bond was set at $2,500.

Color TV Stolen

A color television set valued at $395 was stolen from Countryside Mobile Homes at 117 O St. over the weekend, police reported Monday. Entrance to the trailer containing the TV set was gained by prying open the door, police said.

Wheat Availability 'Concerns Asians'

Ogallala (AP) — Asian countries are expressing concern over the availability of U.S. wheat exports, members of the Nebraska-Wyoming Wheat Growers Association were told here Monday.

Lawrence Lueking of Oxford, a director of Western Wheat Associates, reported to the growers on a tour of Asian nations.

Canadian and Australian wheat marketing firms apparently are spreading the word that the U.S. is not a dependable source for continuing wheat supplies and are pressing sales from their countries in Asia, he said.

However, he said, a Department of Agriculture team is expected to tour the Asian nations, assuring them there will be adequate supplies to fulfill their food needs.

Wheat growers also expressed concern over proposed 15% reductions in fuel allocations. Association President Holly Hodge of Holdrege noted that U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz has called for 100% of production for 1974, but Hodge said this was impossible with reductions in fuel allocations.

Larry Swanson of McCook, an association spokesman, said that due to the price-cost squeeze, U.S. farmers are already among the most economical fuel users in the nation.

"We have become as efficient as possible," Swanson said. "We feel the slack in fuel usage should be taken up elsewhere."

Swanson announced that Custer County is the latest county to join the Wheat Growers Association. Leland Cantrell is president of the new group.

The Wheat Growers went on record favoring one time zone — Mountain standard — in Nebraska.

Designs May Bring Money

An educational project may turn out to be a profitable venture for two University of Nebraska-Lincoln design students.

Dea Ferris, a sophomore from Archer, has designed a ring using symbols from her sorority Kappa Delta. The design may be accepted for the national ring of the sorority. Randy Bond, a junior from Osceola, is selling T-shirts that carry an "FAC" emblem he designed.

The students' creations were made for an emblem design assignment in an advanced design class. Miss Virginia Harvey, NU instructor in textiles, clothing and design, said she believes in encouraging students to market their projects outside of class.

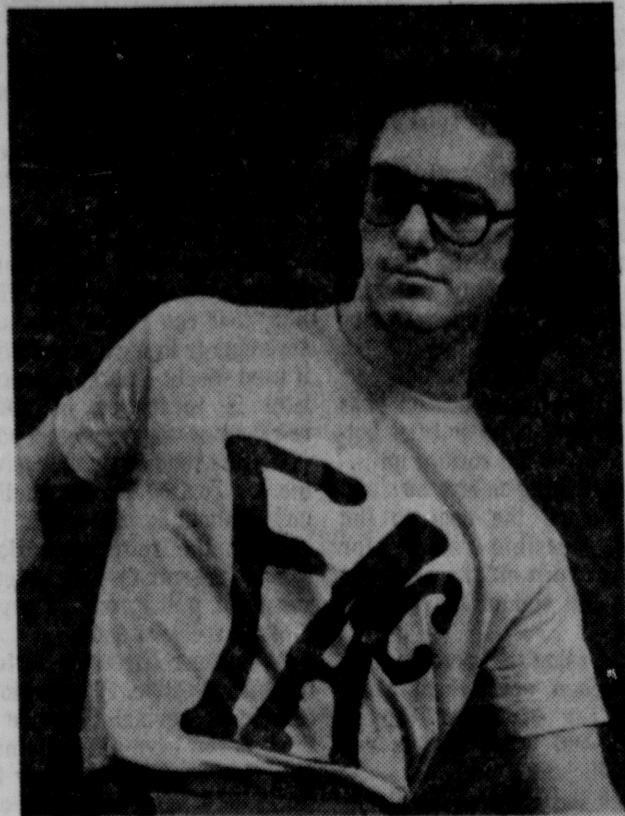

Bond's "FAC" emblem is college lingo for "Friday Afternoon Club" which signifies a time to start the weekend "entertainment." The "FAC" is in the form of a beer mug, complete with yellow beer and white foam. The T-shirts are light blue.

A college-oriented novelty shop in Lincoln printed the T-shirts for Bond; however, he is doing his own selling. On last report, Bond had sold about 10 dozen shirts.

Miss Ferris' ring design has not yet been made into an actual ring. She has sent a copy of the design to the national editor of Kappa Delta Sorority, who will encourage adoption of the design at the national council meeting in January. The Greek letters for Kappa Delta and a dagger, a symbol for the sorority, are included in the ring design. Miss Ferris said pearls or emeralds, which are the sorority jewels, could be added. The ring would be made in antique gold or an antique sterling silver. The design could also be used in a pin or a necklace.

According to Miss Ferris, a Lincoln Jeweler estimated it would cost $150 to $200 to make one ring. This includes the cost of the wax sculpture and the mold which would have to be made. Since there are 2,000 girls in Kappa Delta, the cost of the non-jeweled ring could be as low as $30, if the national sorority accepts the design, she said.

YW To Open For Christmas Rec Program

The Central YWCA's Health, Physical Education and Recreation facilities will be available for recreational use during Christmas vacation.

The facility, at 1432 N St., will be open Dec. 17 through 21 and Jan. 7 through 11.

Use of the fitness room and gymnasium will be from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. daily.

Drop-in swims will be from 12 to 3:30 p.m. daily, with special activities scheduled from 7 to 8:30 p.m. those evenings.

Family swims will be held Dec. 18 and 21 and Jan. 8 and 11. Drop-in sessions for youths, 9 to 18 years of age, will be held Dec. 19 and 20 and Jan. 9 and 10.

Synchronized swimming for all ages will take place Mondays, Dec. 17 and Jan. 7, from 7 to 8:30 p.m.

New recreational classes will begin after the Christmas break, on Monday, Jan. 14.

More Women Now Use Power Tools

According to a recent survey, more and more women now are using power tools.

The use of power tools by women to date appears to center largely in the area of arts, crafts and hobbies.

These items have skyrocketed in popularity in recent years and now are running at the annual rate of about $1.5 billion in sales of materials and equipment.

12 States Have Equal Rights Provisions

Only two states have equal rights provisions in their original state constitutions. But 10 states have passed equal rights provisions in their states' constitutions since 1970, and two others have provisions which will be submitted to their electorate next year.

The original constitutions of Wyoming (adopted in 1890) and Utah (adopted in 1896) contained equal rights provisions guaranteeing equal rights and responsibilities for both sexes.

Other states with provisions now in their constitution are Alaska, Colorado, Hawaii, Illinois, Maryland, New Mexico, Pennsylvania, Texas, Virginia, Washington. Proposed amendments have been passed by the legislatures in Connecticut and Massachusetts.

Draperies Are Expensive

(Be careful who cleans them.)

There is a definite art to cleaning drapes. They should be measured before they're cleaned. The measurements should be the same AFTER they're cleaned. The hemline should be even. Uniform. Corners, square. The pleats should be absolutely vertical. Neat. Even. They should be returned to you packaged in such a way that they will not lose their shape before you have a chance to have them re-hung. Draperies are expensive. Protect your investment. Have them cleaned by our exclusive Adjust-a-drape system. The GUARANTEED LENGTH drapery service. It's the system you can count on.

No Gifts, Please

DEAR ABBY: You have stated that it is in poor taste to include "NO GIFTS, PLEASE" on an invitation because it suggests that a gift is expected. Then you say, "But it is proper to suggest that a donation be made instead to some worthy cause in honor of the occasion." Abby, to suggest that donations be made to "a worthy cause" IS asking for a gift, isn't it?

Recently we celebrated our 50th wedding anniversary and put "NO GIFTS PLEASE" on our invitations, which is the way we wanted it, and I might add, our wishes were respected, too. I wish you'd make up your mind.

STILL LOVE YOU

DEAR STILL: You are right. I was wrong. "No gifts, please" IS proper on an invitation. Tonight my Christmas dinner shall consist of "crow," and humble pie for dessert. Mea culpa, mea maxima culpa, and three gewalts.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing to you, hoping to reach my husband this way because he always has time to read DEAR ABBY, but he never has time to listen to me.

Altho I love my husband and dear

he claims to "love" me, he does not respect me as a person.

Before I married him, I was a SOMEBODY in my profession. Even today, I am a SOMEBODY in our community because I have made a real contribution here, but at home I am NOBODY.

My husband is too busy for me and for his children. Oh, I'm all right as his housekeeper, and I'm all right as the mother of his children. I'm even all right as a bed partner (when he's not too tired), but as a person — I'm a NOBODY.

I shall continue in my nonpersons supportive role until the children are grown. And then I'll leave him so I can be a SOMEBODY again.

MRS. NOBODY

DEAR MRS.: Yours is much too important a message to chance reaching its destination. (What if he doesn't have time for ME today?) better READ this to him. If he doesn't react, let me know, and I'll mail it to him.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "HURT" IN ESSEX JUNCTION, VT.: Heed the wise words of Noah Webster: "By taking revenge, a man is even with his enemy, but by passing it over, he is superior." Now is your opportunity to be superior.

Save Energy In Kitchen

Saving energy during the cold winter months ahead is more than just turning down the thermostat a few degrees and adding a sweater or two.

The most efficient use of kitchen appliances and equipment can help cut energy consumption, and Esther S. Chamberlain, county extension agent, offers some energy saving tips.

Range

Use tight-fitting lids on pans with straight sides and flat bottoms that fit the surface units.

Start cooking on high heat and then reduce the heat to the lowest possible setting for cooking. Turn off the heat just before the end of the cooking period.

Avoid using the range to heat the kitchen or to heat large quantities of water. Space heaters and water heaters are more efficient.

Check the color of the flame when using gas. A blue flame means efficient heat consumption; a yellow flame indicates poor consumption.

Reduce cooking time by using double boilers, pressure cookers and pan dividers to cook several foods at a time for a shorter period.

Open the oven door only when necessary during cooking.

Plan to use the oven for complete meals or several meals. Prepare foods in time of cooking sequence so that the same fuel cooks several dishes.

Place a piece of foil slightly larger than the pan on the next shelf to catch drips. This protects the oven and prevents reflection of some of the heat away from the pan.

Refrigerators, Freezers

Refrigerators and home freezers are aids to meal planning that can reduce time and save energy in meal preparation if used wisely. Energy conservation is increased in using refrigerators and freezers if you:

Defrost the refrigerator when the ice coating on the cooling unit is about 1/4 inch thick.

Check the refrigerator door seals. Make sure they are so tight you can't pull a strip of paper through a closed door.

Open the refrigerator as few times as possible. Plan to store or remove several things at a time. If you have a large family or children, cold water may be stored in a large insulated container, fitted with a spigot, and placed in an easily accessible place. Ice cubes may be stored in similar containers; a large bottle of drinking water stored in the refrigerator reduces the need for ice.

Dishwashers

Dishwashers should be given the care recommended by the manufacturer for efficiency and prolonged use. Energy is used most efficiently if you:

Use detergents recommended for the dishwasher, because excess suds from other detergents could interfere with the washing action.

Operate the dishwasher only when it is full. Try using the dishwasher early in the morning or late in the evening, when the air temperature is cool. Using the dishwasher at the same time the range is in use sets up a chain reaction of energy consumption for hot water and cooling.

Use the rack to rinse all dishes at one time when you hand wash dishes. Use either the rinse sprayer or dip the rack of dishes in container of water.

INSIDE THE HOUSE

Lighting

Use natural light whenever possible. Let the sunshine in. Keep windows clean to let natural light inside.

If a room doesn't seem to have enough light, eliminate any large mass of dark colors and add lighter and brighter colors. Get out your paint brush and be creative.

Make sure that all ceilings are a light color and have a "Matt" finish. This ceiling treatment will make best use of light in the area. Dark ceilings trap and absorb light.

Whenever possible, arrange for light to be directed at the ceiling. A light matt finished ceiling will diffuse the light and spread it over the room.

Use lamp shades that are translucent with white linings to allow light to be reflected and to pass through the shade. Dark shades will absorb the light.

Place lamps and fixtures where they are needed, not three feet away.

Dust light bulbs. Collected dust cuts down on the light from the bulb.

Use bulbs and tubes of the proper wattage.

Turn off fluorescent lights only if they will not be needed for a period of two hours. It takes considerable energy to turn on these lights and each time shortens the life of the tube.

Turn off incandescent lights if they will not be used for 30 minutes to 1 hour. It requires more energy to operate incandescent bulbs than fluorescent for a specific amount of light.

Laundry

Wait until you have a full load before you use the washing machine. Some machines have provisions for small loads. Select the correct load setting.

Remember the nice clean smell of a line-dried wash? Line-dry some articles instead of machine-drying them.

Don't overdry clothes — use correct setting

Clean the dryer filter after each use.

Organize ironing to iron all items at one setting at one time. Reheating the iron requires considerable energy.

Preheat the iron only long enough to get it to the correct temperature.

Turn off the iron if you are to be away from it for any length of time.

Use the lowest possible setting when ironing.

Cleaning the House

Use a carpet sweeper instead of a vacuum cleaner for light cleaning.

Dust instead of using a vacuum cleaner attachment for tables, woodwork, etc.

Do not leave the vacuum cleaner on when it is not being used.

Organize cleaning activities so that you can shorten the time the vacuum is in use.

Use self-polishing floor waxes when possible to avoid using any electric waxes or buffers.

Use elbow power instead of electrical power!

Water Heater

Don't let a hot water faucet leak. One leak can cause a loss of 700 gallons a year.

Keep water heater thermostat at 150° - 160° F.

Frost With Gelatin

You don't have to frost cookies. Sprinkle unbaked cutout cookies with different flavors of gelatin. It will also add a fruity flavor.

Opening lead - four of clubs.

There are not many hands where a play is truly difficult. Usually, when a play is overlooked, it is because the play is contrary to normal procedure.

Consider this deal where West led a club and declarer won East's jack with the queen. Spades were obviously the suit to attack, so South led the jack and finessed, losing to the queen.

Back came a club and South was in trouble. He permitted West's nine to win, but West played another club, forcing out the ace, and soon got in with the ace of spades to put the contract down one.

Actually, South should have made the hand. He should have allowed East to win the opening club lead with the jack. Had he

Charles Chace To Talk Friday

Charles Chace, executive director of the Nebraska Petroleum Council, will present a film and talk on the energy crises at the Lincoln Republican Women's Club Friday, Dec. 14 at 1:30 p.m.

The meeting at the First Federal, 1235 N St., is open to the public and men and women are invited.

Check Out Charities First

During the holiday season, people asking for donations to charity come out by the hundreds. Most are for legitimate charities, but watch out, because some may not be. They may prey on the generosity of the season to make a few extra bucks.

The Better Business Bureau has suggested some tips to help you be a wiser donor:

—Know the individual or organization who will receive the gift.

—Don't give to telephone solicitations. Ask the caller to send the request in writing.

—Never give your contribution to a messenger who is sent by the telephone solicitor. Ask for proof and identification.

—Name dropping is a trick to catch your interest. Beware of those who say a famous person has endorsed them.

—Give only to bona fide charities—those who provide you with adequate information.

Tuesday, December 11, 1973 The Lincoln Star 19

—Unordered merchandise supposedly for the benefit of charity does not have to be acknowledged, paid for or returned. And that's what you should do to get off the mailing list.

—Before you give to doubtful causes, find out about them. Phone the Better Business Bureau.

—Make sure the contribution you give reaches those who wish it to benefit.

Nixon Rents Out Dilapidated House

(c) Chicago Daily News
Washington — President Nixon owns a dilapidated house in Whittier, Calif., once occupied by his mother, that has rented for an average of $50 a month for the last four years.
The President's venture as a landlord came to light when he disclosed his federal income tax returns and other financial records last weekend.
Nixon has spent nothing for repairs on the frame building since 1969, according to his tax returns, although there is a $290 item for "clean-up."
He has paid more than $20,000 for taxes, interest on a mortgage loan, insurance and utility bills. Depreciation on the house has added $3,200 to his deductions since 1969.

An audit by Coopers & Lybrand, a New York firm, indicates the land is worth $72,000 and the house less than $4,600. The audit showed Nixon still owed $45,307 on the mortgage as of last May 31.

Because of the low rent and the high taxes and interest payments, the house has increased the President's income tax deductions by about $24,000 in four years.

"We're looking for a buyer," one of the President's tax advisers said. Nixon bought the house in 1965, when his mother, Hannah, was still living. He began renting it after her death in 1969.

NIXON'S... tenant is Rev. Charles Mylander, pastor of East Whittier Friends Church.

Nixon's Residence More Than 'Transitory'

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon's tenure in Washington as chief executive is more than "temporary or transitory," his tax attorneys have concluded.

And it is that position on which they based their opinion that Nixon does not have to file a state tax return, sources said Monday.

Sources said Nixon's position was reached after an exhaustive study of state income tax law, which sets different standards of residency as compared to those for purposes such as voting, marriage and divorce.

The sources also said Nixon severed all connections with California when he moved to New York State in 1963 and has not re-established a residency that would make him liable for California income taxes.

State laws set tests for income tax residency, but a basic standard is whether a person who might otherwise be a California resident is out of the state for more than a "temporary or transitory purpose," sources said.

A formal contest of Nixon's tax status is to be initiated on Tuesday by a Democratic state official at a meeting of the state Franchise Tax Board.

Board member William M. Bennett said he was amazed to learn from documents released by the White House Saturday that Nixon had filed no California state income tax returns.

Bennett already had asked the board to determine whether the President had met any California income tax obligation he might have.

The opinion that Nixon is not a California resident for tax purposes, although he votes in the state, was solely that of his tax attorneys, sources said. No formal opinion had been sought.

Martin Huff, executive director of the Franchise Tax Board, said Monday: "We have issued no ruling in regard to the tax status of the President."

Going to move? Then notify the Circulation Dept. so you won't miss your paper. Be sure to give both old and new address.

Huff also said release of White House statements regarding Nixon's California income tax situation indicates "it is the intention of the President to open his federal and state tax affairs to the public."

"We have, therefore, written the President requesting his permission to place his California income tax affairs in the public domain," Huff said.

Bennett contends that since Nixon owns property in California and votes here, he should pay state income taxes.

Interest On Bonds Now 6%

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House announced Monday that the interest rate on U.S. savings bonds is being increased to 6 per cent to make the bonds more attractive to investors.

The increase will be retroactive to Dec. 1. Both old and new bonds will benefit from the higher interest.

The Treasury Department said the higher interest on bonds will be accomplished by having a shorter maturity date, with the new maturity to be five years.

What it means for the bond purchaser is that a $25 bond costing an initial $18.75 will mature to $25 in five years from date of purchase instead of five years and 10 months.

The increased interest was made necessary by rising interest rates throughout the economy, which threatened to undermine the savings bond program.

There was a net outflow of savings bonds redemptions over sales in September, an indication of how serious the problem had become, although there has been a partial recovery in October and November.

Tuesday, December 11, 1973 The Lincoln Star 21 Is Toilet Paper Shortage Next?

Washington (UPI) — A congressman warned Monday of the possibility of a toilet tissue shortage which he said would be "no laughing matter."
"I hope we don't have to ration toilet tissue, but that may become necessary in the future if we don't lift price controls on domestic pulp and begin to limit pulp exports," said Rep. Harold Froehlich, R-Wis.
He said the General Services Administration recently asked for bids on 182,050 boxes of toilet tissue and "the agency received bids that fell far short of the total quantity needed."

Froehlich said a check he made with hotel purchasing agents showed "the paper situation is very tight."
The freshman lawmaker said he is preparing a bill "to limit pulp and waste paper exports and exempt domestic pulp from price controls under the economic stabilization act."

Denney's Store Closing Plan Watered Down

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

City lawmakers adopted a watered down version of Councilman Max Denney's store closing proposal Monday.

Denney withdrew his resolution calling for a voluntary closing of stores one day a week, a 7 p.m. closing hour and restricted outdoor lighting following a hearing and stated opposition to the plan.

Denney said he could see "the handwriting on the wall" and proposed instead that the council encourage all businesses, including commercial, industrial and professional, to do "everything possible on a voluntary basis to help conserve electricity, heat, gas, fuel oil and motor fuel."

Councilman Dick Baker cast the lone vote opposing the second resolution. He explained that while he agreed with the statement, he contended the energy crisis problem should be attacked at the national level, not the local level.

Councilwoman Helen Boosalis said the whole energy situation warranted further study and said she thought it was unfair to single out one segment of the community to lead the way.

Councilman Bob Sikyta contended that such government interference in the private sector could cause unemployment and close down businesses.

Denney contended, however, that such voluntary compliance to limited shopping hours would not create a depression, but that lack of leadership in Washington will.

Councilman Steve Cook said the resolution asking compliance would be ineffective in conserving energy since, "If they're (merchants) not doing it now, passing a resolution won't make any difference."

Cook said unless all businesses comply in closing one day a week, he would not blame retailers for not complying with the resolution since Lincoln businessmen are "competing with a major regional shopping area."

Councilwoman Sue Bailey suggested that the mayor's new energy conservation commission be directed to study the matter as part of its overall energy conservation program. Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf has announced his intentions of creating the commission.

Businessman John Campbell, president of Miller and Paine, said he would comply with the resolution if passed, but said, "I'm going to save electricity with or without it. I don't think the council should dictate it."

Campbell contended that little energy would be saved by closing the stores, since those customers and employees would expend more electricity in their homes.

He pointed out that many stores depend on special electric lights and their customers for much of their heat, and so use little more energy open than closed.

Media Criticized
Campbell also criticized the news media for "bringing attention in a critical fashion on leaders who are doing their best to conserve energy."

If the energy crisis becomes acute, he suggested that everyone go one day without electricity, including the newspapers.

Lincoln realtor Pace Woods Jr. suggested that the business restriction be extended to restaurants, bars, industry and the realty business.

"If we think the energy crisis is not real, we're deluding ourselves," Woods said.

Attorney Hyman Polsky suggested that the council prod the administration and Congress to expedite laws dealing with the energy crisis.

Boosalis said she is reluctant to restrict business hours "without any real study or direction."

"I don't think we're ready for this quite yet," the council chairwoman said.

City Council OKs Condominiums Despite Objections

Meadowlane residents were unsuccessful in urging the City Council to reject a community unit plan for condominiums at Skyway Rd. and O.

The council Monday approved the plan and preliminary plat for 46 condominiums on the site of the Colonial Golf Course.

Meadowlane Community Organization President Dick Hansen presented a petition signed by 600 people objecting to the development proposed by Richard Watson.

Hansen contended that construction of condominiums would disrupt "the quality of life in Meadowlane" and would generate additional traffic in the area.

Another resident Stan Weeks contended that if the land were subdivided into standard sized lots, fewer than 46 houses would be built.

Planning Director Doug Brogren reported that under the present A-2 Single Family zoning, 51 units could be built. However, due to the topography of the golf course, he computed that only 36 units could be built.

Another resident Jack Fields contended that the land was subject to flash flooding and that the soil could not support foundations for condominium construction.

Brogren reported that the drainage problem had been reviewed by the staff and that the developer's plan to deal with the situation was acceptable.

Watson's attorney Ed Perry said plans call for the sale of the units and that the condominiums would be "a nice place to live in if 36 or 40 houses were built here."

Councilman Dick Baker pointed out that the Goals and Policies report supports the creation of community unit plans.

Earlier this fall the council studied, then rejected, a plea by Meadowlane residents to purchase the golf course for a park site. The council decided the cost of the land was prohibitive.

Community Development Director Leo Scherer told the council in a letter that if the permit is approved and the golf course removed, it is important for the city to improve recreational facilities in the area. Scherer suggested Herbert Park or the Vine Street Water Reservoir site.

In other action the council approved the application of Robert Manthey to build a steel barn on his property at 70th and South for his herd of cows.

The application stated that the request was for a non-conforming use.

However, Manthey's attorney Robert Guenzel questioned "how a legal use can become a non-conforming use is beyond me when some neighborhood children come over and burn the old barn down."

Guenzel reported that Manthey has received an annual permit to keep the cows, which he quipped, compared to elephants "are small animals."

A city ordinance prohibits the keeping of large animals within the city limits.

On another animal related question, the council narrowly defeated a request to allow a mobile veterinary clinic in southeast Lincoln.

The council defeated 4 to 3 Dr. William Miner's application to conduct the practice out of his home at 90th and Hwy. 2.

Miner told city lawmakers he did not intend to construct kennels or board animals on the property.

Although the planning commission recommended approval of the application, Brogren did not. He contended approval of the permit would be an impetus to the stringing out of businesses along the highway and suggested the more proper place for the business was in the village of Cheney.

Council members Sue Bailey, Helen Boosalis, Steve Cook and Bob Sikyta voted no, while Dick Baker, Max Denney and John Robinson cast the losing yes votes.

The council also authorized the issuance of $1 million in bond anticipation notes for the Lincoln Electric System.

The council recommended denial of one liquor license application and delayed action on a second.

Council Acts To Provide 4th Courtroom

After holding out for more than a year, city lawmakers Monday directed that cost estimates and plans be drawn up for turning the Personnel Department into a fourth courtroom.

In a meeting with Municipal Judges Donald Grant and Thomas McManus, the council indicated it was favorable to the long disputed solution to the fourth courtroom dilemma.

The council budgeted money for a fourth judge, but balked at budgeting funds to remodel any portion of the County-City Building for the fourth courtroom. The three Municipal judges objected to that solution, contending that their increased caseload warranted the conversion of the Personnel Department into the courtroom. The Personnel Department is located on the second floor of the County-City Building, where the existing courtrooms are located.

Apparently scratched at the morning meeting was the first compromise solution which called for conversion of the second floor hallway into the courtroom.

City Atty. Dick Wood reported that plan received the objections of the building's architect as being an undesirable solution because "anything temporary tends to become permanent."

Wood also reported that solution squeezed the Personnel Department even further in the juggling of office space with the city law department to accommodate the courtroom and judge's chambers.

Under the second plan, personnel would move into the water and light department's first floor headquarters, across the hall from the Building Inspections Divisions.

The council suggested that the division could be moved temporarily into the Civil Defense offices in the basement or out of the building entirely. Wood suggested that the divisions could eventually be housed in the proposed City Services Complex.

Councilman Bob Sikyta suggested that the division could temporarily be housed in a mobile home so that customers could pay their water and light bills.

Personnel Director Walt Mitchell said the amount of space gained on the first floor "is almost exactly what we need," especially if the county contracts with the department to do some of its work, he said.

The council directed that a report on the matter be given in two weeks.

City Officials Discuss Legislative Proposals

Preparations for the upcoming legislative session were initiated by city lawmakers Monday. They registered support for a number of measures to be introduced during the 1974 session, including:

- a bill requiring color photos on drivers' licenses.
- a bill requiring a blood test for alcohol in all fatal accidents.

- a bill banning discrimination on the basis of race, color, sex, religion or national origin in the sale of liquor in private clubs.

- a bill amending the state civil rights act to allow the city's ordinance to be more comprehensive than state statute.

- a bill allowing local governments the final authority on floodplain regulations, rather than natural resource districts.
- a bill insuring the "one man, one vote" representation on natural resource districts.

The council also is studying endorsing legislation giving city councils, not planning commissions, the final say in approving comprehensive plans.

U.S. Ship Sails Off The Coast Of N. Vietnam

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American carrier Midway is sailing through the South China Sea off the coast of North Vietnam, the Pentagon said today.

A Navy spokesman said, however, the ship's presence off the coast has no connection with the increased tempo of fighting in South Vietnam.

It is U.S. policy to maintain a carrier off North Vietnam. The carrier Oriskany conducted some operations there last November 16-19, Navy officials said.

Films Banned

Athens (UPI)—The government banned the films "Jesus Christ, Superstar" and "The Bouzouki" for "general reasons." Movie house operators had obtained permits to show both films but the government withdrew it.

Back Woman Mayor Emphasizes Poverty

By IVAN TRAVNICEK
Star Staff Writer

The first black woman mayor elected in the U.S. still using the language that won her the election in Taft, Okla. issued an appeal in Lincoln Monday night for all community, county and state governmental organizations to work together to find a solution to poverty.

Lelia Foley, 31, the mother of five children born out of wedlock, told the seventh annual meeting of the Lincoln Action Program (LAP) that she was born and raised in a "shotgun" house (3 rooms) and that she has been fighting to be somebody and do something with her life ever since.

Going from door to door in her campaign because she had no money, she promised to help clean up the town of more than 600, bring federal revenue sharing money in and encourage industry to enter the town to help provide jobs.

Check Received
A recent $11,375 revenue sharing check will help her achieve that pledge, she said. She said she hopes more will be forthcoming, but "doesn't think so with the way things are going in Washington."

There is no salary for the mayor's job in Taft, just a token annual payment of $100. So her only income comes from her $232 monthly unemployment compensation check, she said.

Although her father was a sharecropper and her mother a professional midwife, she said she is "proof to America that a black woman can make it."

Mrs. Foley said it is time for more races to join in the political arena and said, "I am convinced that a woman who can manage a home on a meager welfare check each month can manage the richest nation on earth."

Reports on community strategies for 1974 were given by representatives of three groups.

Louis Perdomo, the executive director of the Lincoln Indian Center, said health problems of the native American, education and self-determination to develop will be the focus for the center in the coming year.

Doris Scott, the president of the City Wide Tenants Association, said her group will fight for passage of the landlord-tenants bill.

The group is hoping to add 300 new members in the coming year and "will continue to fight for better housing for the people of Lincoln through legislation, communication of the needs of people for better housing and participation" from organizations and members of the community, she said.

Education
Joe Renteria, the coordinator of special services at the University of Nebraska, said "the thrust of UNL and the Chicano in Nebraska is an education."

He said the university administration is committing itself to "increasing the number of students that are members of minority groups" and "trying to get the state to commit itself to equal opportunity education."

Members of the LAP board are divided into three categories and for 1974 the members will be:

Neighborhood resident members: Sallie Sawyer, Shirley Roberts, Marjorie Harding, Shirley Mike, Marcie Stoffer, Barbara Pate, Peggy Vrana, Elaine Bratt, Georgia Brown, Frank Jones and Burt Riehlert. Their respective alternates will be: Ivan Upchurch, Alice Rupert, Mary Campbell, Virginia Kelley, Marian Sather, Becky Austermoore, Wade Lewis, Karen Buller, John Lewis, Diane Bowling and Mary Ann Keller. Private organization representatives: Leonard Johnson, Dr. Donald Okavie, Janette Turner, Charles Pate, Pat Benton, Jerry Starcher, Dr. David Deane, Albert Cooke, Rudi Mitchell, Jesse Martinez and Karen Buller. Public officials representatives: Carl Kopines, Helen Boosalis, Gerald Henderson, Anita Stone, Joe Renteria, Paul Gauger, Leighton Wessel, Clancy Woodman, Dr. Robert L. Egbert and Carroll Swan.

Market Rallies Strongly

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices rallied strongly Monday for the third consecutive session as investors appeared to be putting aside at least some fears about the effects of an energy crisis analysts said.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial closed up 13.09 at 851.44, having gained almost 63 points in the last three trading session.

Advancing issues on the Big Board had a 1,063 to 491 lead over declines in a strong trading volume of 18.58 million shares.

Referring to the recent downward slide in which the Dow blue-chip indicator lost about 200 points, Larry Wachtel of Bache & Co., said:

"The Market wasn't discounting an energy crisis, it looked like it was discounting the end of the world."

Wachtel and other analysts said the market appeared to be re-examining its losses and on second thought concluding that things might not be as bad as originally thought.

Ralph Acampora of Harris, Upham & Co., said that as far as the near term, it looked as if the market would continue to move up.

The Big Board's broad-based index of some 1,300 common stocks was up 2.15, while the American Stock Exchange market-value index closed up 33.47.

Among the big winners Monday were some issues that had been hurt by investor fears of how the energy crisis would affect their businesses.

General Motors, which had taken big losses, was the Big Board volume leader Monday up 1 1/2 at 47 1/2. Ramada Inns was up at 6 1/2 after a 10-point drop last week; it had been hurt by investor fears of gasoline shortages adversely affecting tourism.

Other volume leaders included Southern Copper up 1/4 at 15 1/2, Kennecott Copper up 1/2 at 39 1/2, and McDonald's up 1/4 at 5 1/2.

On the Amex, the volume leader was Lowes Theater Warrants unchanged at 4 1/2.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Where's The Second Letter?

I've been anxiously going through my mail every morning for the past three weeks to find a second letter from a guy, who listed his address on the first letter as a downtown hotel.

Several possible explanations are plausible as to why the second letter hasn't arrived. Perhaps, it's been lost among the Christmas cards at the Post Office.

Perhaps the mailman only stops at that hotel once a month. Or perhaps the gentleman bets on his own football picks and if he does, I'm sure he can't afford an eight-cent stamp more than once a month.

His name shall go unprinted to save him embarrassment, but his first letter was one he claims he wrote on Friday, Nov. 16, challenging my predictions on several games played on Saturday, Nov. 17.

I know he's telling the truth about writing it on Friday because he could certainly have made a much better challenge had he written it after the games were played.

Getting into the meat of the subject, he begins:

'About Your Miscalculations'

"I rather enjoy comparing your picks on Saturday football games and have considered writing you from time to time regarding your miscalculations.

"I note in today's (Nov. 16) paper that you stress the mismatches and come up with point spreads so unjustified, I have decided some sort of disagreement is necessary. If I'm wrong, I'll grin and bear it, but let's look at a few games."

Okay, let's look. His first challenge comes on our forecast of a 41-14 Nebraska victory over Kansas State.

"Here you go again, picking the Huskers by umpteen touchdowns," he writes. "It appears some people never learn. Christmas came early against Colorado and Iowa State and this time we're in their ballpark. I call it Nebraska 24, Kansas State 13.

Your point spread was 11, mine was 27; NU won by 29 at 50-21. Score: Me 1, You 0.

Next he says of my 38-14 Oklahoma over Kansas pick, "I wish the Jayhawks could see this one. It might spur David Jaynes to pinpoint a few into the end zone. For a team that could be undefeated but for a couple of busted conversions this is just too much. I call it Oklahoma 21, Kansas 10."

Your point spread was 11, mine was 24. OU won by 48-20 and that's 28 points. Score: Me 2, You 0.

Next, he doesn't like the 24-point spread I gave Alabama over Miami, Fla., at 31-7, arguing, "Come on now! Miami is the team that knocked off Texas. Remember? Not a hurricane maybe, but a strong wind. I say Alabama 28, Miami 20.

Your point spread is only 8, mine was 24. Alabama won by 30 at 43-13. Score: Me 3, You 0.

But now the hotel occupant starts his rally, observing, "Also, Georgia has more punch than Auburn by 21-17. Same with North Carolina over Wake Forest by 35-21. Minnesota over Illinois by 28-14. And SMU over Arkansas by 20-13.

In those games, I had picked Auburn, Wake Forest, Illinois and Arkansas. Georgia, North Carolina and Minnesota were winners with SMU and Arkansas tying. Score now: Me 3, You 3, Ties 1.

But it's not over. On my pick of Air Force to upset Arizona, he charges, "It won't even be close. Arizona by 34-7."

And, "Finally," he argues, "Southern Cal will probably beat Washington by a comfortable margin, but they couldn't score 42 points (that's the number I gave Southern Cal) against a good high school team. Okay, Hal, now we'll compare results."

The Air Force-Arizona game was close with the Air Force winning it, 27-26, and Southern Cal did score 42 points in a 42-19 win over Washington. Final score: Me 5, You 3.

And since you live in the same building where my Bear Bryant hat was stolen, if you happen to see it, you might retrieve it for me.

UCLA, North Carolina State Rated 1-2

NEW YORK (UPI) — UCLA and North Carolina State, which will collide this Saturday in college basketball's second "dream game" of 1973, were the overwhelming choices as the nation's 1-2 teams in the first week of regular season balloting by the United Press International coaches ratings board.

UCLA, unbeaten in its last 78 straight games, received 33 first place votes of the 34 ballots cast for a total of 339 points, while N.C. State picked up the lone remaining first place vote and 303 points. The two powerhouses, which finished unbeaten and 1-2 in the nation a year ago, will meet Saturday in St. Louis on the second half of a college doubleheader.

Indiana, third in pre-season ratings, remained in that spot with 243 points after winning its first three games and North Carolina retained its pre-season No. 4 rating. Maryland, which lost by a point to UCLA in the season's first "dream game" at Los Angeles 10 days ago, was not hurt by its defeat, holding firm at its pre-season No. 5.

Marquette was sixth followed in order by Notre Dame, Providence, Memphis State and Louisville. The 10th-ranked Cardinals were the only team besides Maryland to crack the top 10 with a loss on their record.

Alabama headed the second followed in order by Long Beach State, South Carolina,

Bruin-Wolpack Clash Set

By Associated Press

Their heralded showdown now less than one week away, UCLA and North Carolina State easily retained the two top spots in this week's Associated Press college basketball poll released Monday.

The Bruins, who raised their record to 3-0 by beating Southern Methodist 77-60 Saturday night, continued to head the pack, receiving 1,022 points in the voting by a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters. The Bruins received first-place votes from 45 of the 52 members participating in this week's poll.

North Carolina State, 2-0 after routing East Carolina 79-47 and Vermont 97-42, is second with 910 points, including six Nebraska's football team discovered a funny thing on its road Monday to resuming practices for the New Year's Day Cotton Bowl game with Texas — a broken water pipe.

The broken pipe in the new South Stadium at one time made it a possibility that the showers would be unavailable so head coach Tom Osborne decided that "practices" would be canceled.

UPI HONORS Husky Buckeye Player Gets Lineman Of Year

...OU'S SELMON SECOND IN VOTING

NEW YORK (UPI) — John Hicks of Ohio State, a husky offensive tackle whose powerful blocking triggered the Buckeyes' dynamic running game, Monday was named the United Press International's Lineman of the Year for 1973.

The 6-foot-3, 258-pound senior, called by his coach, Woody Hayes, "the best lineman I've ever had, including Jim Parker," was an easy winner in the balloting of 150 sportswriters and sportscasters from across the country. He received 84 votes to 32 for runnerup Lucius Selmon, a middle guard from Oklahoma.

Defensive tackle Randy Crowder of Penn State was a distant third with six votes and middle guard Tony Christiani of Miami (Fla.) was fourth with four votes.

Hicks, who also won the Outland Trophy as the nation's best interior lineman, received the highest rating marks of any Ohio State lineman in nine of the team's 10 games. Despite his awesome size, Hicks also showed fine speed, running the 40-yard dash in 4.8 seconds.

"He's the best offensive lineman I've seen in seven years of scouting for the pros," says Alex Bell, who works for a scouting syndicate. "He never gets knocked off his feet. You can't be a good lineman lying on the ground."

Lee Corso, coach of Indiana whose team was beaten by the Buckeyes handily, calls Hicks "a super lineman."

TOP ISU Award To Hunt

AMES, Iowa (AP)—Lawrence "Big Daddy" Hunt, a senior from Del Ray Beach, Fla., walked off with the top individual award at Iowa State's annual football recognition banquet Monday night.

Middle guard-middle line-backer Hunt received the Reuben Miller Award, given annually "to the player who has brought honor to Iowa State, both on and off the field."

Hunt was named to the Associated Press All-Big Eight team earlier this month.

Ted Jorнов, Hudson, N.Y., senior line-backer, was presented the Al Knudson Award as the top defensive player.

Place kicker Tom Goedjen, Two Rivers, Wis., received the Ralph Aulmann Scholarship,

But the first day of organized work since the 27-0 defeat at Oklahoma on Nov. 23, was no holiday for either the players or the coaching staff.

"We (the coaches) talked to them for about half an hour," Osborne said. "We showed films of the Oklahoma game. Tomorrow (Tuesday) we'll start running for half an hour. If it's cold, we might split into offense and defense and use the indoor area. We'll work on agility drills and lifting weights.

That routine will occur on Wednesday and Thursday while the Huskers will practice in sweat clothes on Friday and Saturday.

Osborne outlined the practice schedule until the Jan. 1 game:

- next week, work in pads from Monday through Saturday.
- Dec. 23-24 will be off days.
- Dec. 25 will be a short practice day.
- Dec. 26 — fly to Dallas and then "work pretty hard the first four or five days we're there."

Osborne said the coaching staff was determining the official team roster for the Texas game and would take between 85 and 87 players.

"Last year we took 85 and the year before that we took 75," Osborne said. "We're trying to stay within our budget this year. The last two years we went a little over. But since it's a shorter trip and room and board we will probably be only half what it was in Miami (where the Huskers went for the last three Orange Bowl games), we can take a few more players.

"But our coaching staff is trying to cut down on expenses," he continued. "We're only going to stay there seven or eight days. We'll come home on Jan. 2."

Osborne added that in determining which players would make the trip, coin flips were used to choose some players who were of equal ability. But, nevertheless, Osborne said it was difficult to tell someone who had been practicing all season long, he would not go to Dallas. "But we still take as many or more players than any other team in the country," Osborne pointed out.

He said the coaches spent Monday consolidating their recruiting efforts and on Tuesday, the team will look at films of the Longhorns.

In taking a second look at the Oklahoma films, Osborne said the Sooners "should get a lot of credit.

"We were outthusted some and outthout some, but they were just real geared up for the game," Osborne noted, adding that I-back Tony Davis played well.

"I thought we could have played better football. We made more mental mistakes in that game than in any game during the season," he said. "In face, six of our first eight passes were incomplete. They were good passes, but they just weren't caught."

Chances Good For Getting Bowl Tickets

If you already have your order in for a Cotton Bowl Football ticket, the chances are excellent that you will receive your request.

That's the latest word from Nebraska athletic ticket manager Jim Pittenger, who said Monday "I think we'll be able to handle all the requests we have now."

Pittenger, who said his office hopes to have all the orders filled by Friday or Saturday, added that more Nebraskans than ever before will be able to see the Huskers in a post-season bowl game.

The initial ticket allotment from the Cotton Bowl was 14,728. But another 2,594 tickets arrived last Friday making a total allotment to Nebraska of 17,322 tickets.

The largest previous allotment of tickets to Nebraska was around 15,500 to the 1971 Orange Bowl game with LSU, Pittenger said.

Pittenger also said that more Nebraskans are driving to Dallas for the New Year's Day game with Texas than in past years when tours and airplanes were the most common modes of transportation.

"It's a close bowl game, and probably the cheapest way to get there is to get five or six people in a car and drive there," Pittenger said.

Southern Juco Players Cited

Fairbury — Leonard Willis and Waymond Hawkins of Nebraska Southern Junior College were named to the second team all-American by the National Junior College Athletic Association Monday.

Willis earned the spot as a halfback while Hawkins was picked as an offensive guard.

The Nebraska Southern team ended the season ranked seventh, in the nation in pass defense, allowing only 69.6 yards-per-game average.

Jayhawks Begin Bowl Workouts

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — The University of Kansas Jayhawks began the last week of Liberty Bowl preparations Monday with a routine regular-season workout.

"This week's practices will be just like a regular game week," said coach Don Fambrough. KU plays North Carolina State in the Liberty Bowl in Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 17.

One hindrance to preparations are final examinations, which began on the Lawrence campus Monday. Fambrough acknowledged that a few players will be forced to miss practice each day, but said the sporadic workouts probably won't have a detrimental effect.

"We'll have no trouble keeping interest high," he said.

By MARK GORDON

The most accurate description of last weekend's Vanderbilt Invitational Basketball Tournament at Nashville, Tenn., comes from Nebraska's junior forward Steve Erwin, who labeled it "rough."

And that's what it was for the Huskers. NU dropped an 82-58 decision in the opening round to eventual tourney champion Vanderbilt and also lost the consolation finals, 76-65, to Middle Tennessee.

"It was kind of a rough tournament for us," Erwin said. "We'd like to have a good game at home or on the road to make up for the tournament."

That opportunity for improvement will come at 7:35 p.m. Tuesday at the NU Coliseum when Nebraska, 2-2, meets Georgia State, which lost a 63-54 verdict to the Huskers last year in Decatur, Ga.

Erwin, who is averaging 12.2 points-per-game this season, also has a personal reason for wanting to do well against the Panthers. Last year, in a reserve role, he failed to score against Georgia State.

In fact, when Erwin was blanked against Vanderbilt (he rebounded to contribute 15 against Middle Tennessee on Saturday) it was the first time since he has received a starting assignment at Nebraska that he has failed to score.

"You always want to have a good game, but to get blanked is about as bad as you can get," said the 6-4 blond from Laurel. "We were disappointed about the tournament. We got beat by Vanderbilt, but we played a lot better the next night."

Georgia State, like NU, hopes to snap a losing streak. Coach Jack Waters' crew opened the campaign by trimming Birmingham Southern, 79-71, in two overtimes and then encountered trouble. Southern Mississippi (93-76), LSU-New Orleans (94-66) and Tulane (81-63) have handed the Panthers three straight setbacks.

Despite a 5-20 record last season, the Atlanta school is hoping that the return of guard Jackie Poag, who led the team in scoring two seasons ago with a 19.5 average, will increase the scoring production. Poag was a victim of scholastic ineligibility.

Erwin, one of NU's most consistent performers, is well aware that mistakes which ultimately contributed to the Huskers' downfall at Nashville, could prove costly against Georgia State.

"We had a lot of chances to make it closer (against Vanderbilt and Middle Tennessee)," he said. "But we made a lot of stupid mistakes and they really hurt us. Vanderbilt has a real good team, but we didn't play very good against them."

The Georgia state game, only the second meeting ever between the two schools, marks the start of a four-game Coliseum stand for coach Joe Cipriano's crew. NU hosts Northeast Missouri State on Friday, MacMurray College of Jacksonville, Ill. on Saturday and the University of Northern Iowa on Dec. 20.

Those games precede the Huskers' first test in the Big Eight's pre-season tournament at Kansas City — a Dec. 27 date against two-time defending league champion Kansas State.

Coach Al Nissen sends his Nebraska Junior varsity basketball team after its second victory this season against Central Nebraska Tech of Hastings in a 5:15 p.m. preliminary contest at the Coliseum.

Rams Blast Giants, 40-6

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Full-back Lawrence McCutcheon scored twice, boosting his rushing total past the 1,000-yard mark and the experimenting Los Angeles Rams whipped the hapless New York Giants 40-6 in the Monday night National Football League game.

McCutcheon, who didn't carry the ball at all in his 1972 rookie season, tallied on a 19-yard pass and 11-yard run in this nationally televised football game.

He carried 11 times for 80 yards and sent his total to 1,014 before leaving the field along with several other regulars in the third period.

McCutcheon, from Colorado State, actually had missed two full games as the Rams built their 11-2 record and the National Football Conference Western Division title.

With their playoff berth already assured and Dallas their apparent foe, the Rams substituted freely starting in the third quarter, including a tour by James Harris at quarterback in place of regular starter John Hadl.

The regular Ram quarterback connected on eight of 17 passes for 108 yards before leaving the game.

The Rams' coaching staff obviously wanted to use several reserve players and rest regulars in looking forward to the playoffs.

New York took a 3-0 lead late in the first quarter when neither team showed much offense. Soccer-style placekicker Pete Gogalak sent the visitors ahead on the balmy night, but the partisan crowd of 73,328 in the Coliseum didn't have long to wait for the hometown team to score.

After taking the ensuing kickoff, Los Angeles surged 68 yards in nine plays with Tony Baker capping the advance with a four-yard smash. Hadl's 17-yard pass to tight end Bob Klein had started the drive.

Next, a pass interference

Mitchell Wins Shrine Pro-Am

LARGO, Fla. (UPI) — Veteran Bobby Mitchell turned loose a birdie barrage Monday to tie the course record of 65 and win the rain shortened National Shrine pro-am golf tournament with a 36-hole score of 10-under par 134.

First round leader Mike Hill, playing with Mitchell, had a two-under-par 70 for a 36-hole total of 138 to tie Rod Curl for second place. Curl fired a 66 Monday.

Young Spike Kelly, who was playing in only his third tournament after getting his Professional Golf Association tour card, set the early pace Monday with a 67 for a 36-hole score of 139.

That tied Kelley with John Mahaffey and Dick Crawford for fourth place.

Mitchell put together a string of four birdies on holes seven through 10 and overtook his playing partner Hill on the ninth hole when he carded a birdie and Hill three-putted from 15 feet for a bogey.

Mitchell finished his record round with eight birdies and one bogey. Curl had seven birdies and one bogey while Kelley had an eagle on the 16th and added four birdies and a bogey.

The victory in this first tournament ever staged by Tournament Golf International, a recently formed challenger to the established Professional Golf Association, was worth $10,000 to Mitchell. Had the tournament gone 54 holes as originally scheduled he would have won $15,000.

McCutcheon, a quick 205-pounder whose play a year ago was limited to special teams. The receiver caught the pass at the six and dashed to the goal.

Although the Rams missed two scoring opportunities late in the second half they came roaring back to score a pair of touchdowns early in the third period.

McCutcheon contributed the first on his 11-yard run, capping a 65-yard drive in which he carried 46 yards in four carries. His third on that drive, a 20-yard gain, put him over the 1,000-yard mark.

Mitchell had his best year since turning pro in 1958 last year when he won $113,000. But then his game went sour and he had been struggling this year, winning only $46,000 going into this added event.

"I was playing lousy," the 1972 Tournament of Champions winner said of this year. "I didn't know whether to quit or take a trip or what."

"You get to feeling everything is against you ... that the winds are blowing against you and for the other fellow. I've got a good solid game when you start to play bad you start to think bad," he said.

"I thought I played good today and I played good yesterday," he said.

Trailing the leaders with a total of 140 were Chuck Courtney and Charlie Sifford, followed by Jim Dent, Bob Zender and Don Iverson at 141.

Twenty-seven of the 80 pros playing the Barmoor Country Club Course bettered or matched par 144 for the 36 holes.

McCutcheon, a quick 205-pounder whose play a year ago was limited to special teams. The receiver caught the pass at the six and dashed to the goal.

Although the Rams missed two scoring opportunities late in the second half they came roaring back to score a pair of touchdowns early in the third period.

McCutcheon contributed the first on his 11-yard run, capping a 65-yard drive in which he carried 46 yards in four carries. His third on that drive, a 20-yard gain, put him over the 1,000-yard mark.

Mitchell had his best year since turning pro in 1958 last year when he won $113,000. But then his game went sour and he had been struggling this year, winning only $46,000 going into this added event.

"I was playing lousy," the 1972 Tournament of Champions winner said of this year. "I didn't know whether to quit or take a trip or what."

"You get to feeling everything is against you ... that the winds are blowing against you and for the other fellow. I've got a good solid game when you start to play bad you start to think bad," he said.

"I thought I played good today and I played good yesterday," he said.

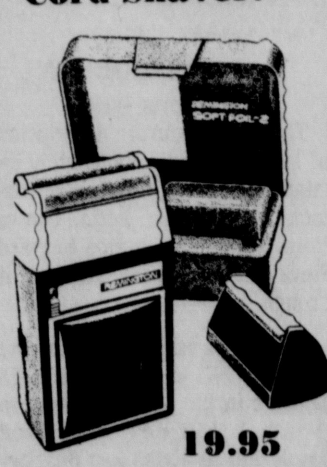

Trailing the leaders with a total of 140 were Chuck Courtney and Charlie Sifford, followed by Jim Dent, Bob Zender and Don Iverson at 141.

Twenty-seven of the 80 pros playing the Barmoor Country Club Course bettered or matched par 144 for the 36 holes.

Even the strongest metal, gets dulled by repeated use. So it's nice to be able to replace your blades
every few months.
Now, once again,
you can have the same super-sharp blades that your shaver had when it was new.

It does a lot more than prepare your skin and set up your beard. It helps the shaver glide over your skin, cutting down on shaver drag and skin irritation.

Kohoutek is seaisick. He and 1,200 others left New York Sunday on a special cruise, following the weather to try to get the best possible view of the comet. By Monday afternoon, the ship still hadn't found a compatible site, and neither had Kohoutek.

The astronomer's wife, Christine, said they were still hopeful.

Omaha Man Held In Death Of Woman, 83
OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Omaha police said Monday James Arthur Brown, 27, of Omaha had been booked on suspicion of homicide in connection with the death of Mrs. Eula Jacobs, 83. An autopsy was ordered to determine the cause of death. Mrs. Jacobs, whose body was found near the shore in Carter Lake Monday, had been missing since Wednesday. Patrolman K. G. Miller discovered the body as he drove on the east side of the lake near Eppley Airfield. Mrs. Jacobs lived alone at an old people's home. Another resident of the home, Ernest Johnson Jr., said he was waiting at a bus stop with Mrs. Jacobs late Wednesday morning when two young men picked her up in a car.

Israel Took With Syria ... Until Damascus Turns Over Prisoner List

By The Associated Press
Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan announced Monday that Israel will not talk peace with Syria until Damascus turns over a list of Israeli prisoners held in Syria.

Dayan told the Israeli parliament that the refusal to deal with Syria at the Dec. 18 Geneva peace negotiations was a government decision. He did not say when it was taken.

The Geneva conference aims to bring together Israel, Egypt, Syria and Jordan under American, Soviet and United Nations auspices in a search for a long-term Middle East settlement.

Israeli refusal to negotiate with Syria would be a serious blow to chances for its success.

The Syrians and the Egyptians were the major Arab combatants in the October Middle East war. Sources in Amman said King Hussein has withdrawn his conditions for Jordan's participation in the Geneva conference. The king had demanded that only Jordan represent Palestinians in the Israeli-occupied west bank of the Jordan River.

The sources said Hussein has now agreed to attend even if the Palestine Liberation Organization is there claiming to speak for the west bank Palestinians.

Israel says Syria has refused to hand over names of the 102 Israeli POWs believed held in Syria and the International Red Cross has confirmed the claim. Dayan charged in addition that Syrians have killed "42 or more"

Israeli POWs and that Egyptians killed at least 28.

Egypt charged in Cairo that Israeli soldiers committed "all sorts of violence and torture" on Egyptian captives and on Egyptian civilians in occupied territory.

Gen. Izzeddin Moukhtar, the chief Egyptian military spokesman, said Israelis "unleashed savage dogs to tear the prisoners apart in continuous attempts to extract military information."

The Egyptian charges came one day after the Israelis formally made their charges that Israeli POWs were killed and tortured, and less than a month after Egyptians and Israelis swapped war prisoners.

Syria has declined to exchange prisoners with the Israelis, insisting that POW swaps deal be part of a wider peace deal that would include Israeli withdrawal from occupied Syrian land.

The Syrian military said in Damascus that an Israeli "engineering unit" was wiped out in one of two clashes along the Golan Heights front. The Israeli military command said the loss was one tractor.

The Israeli decision to snub Syria at the Geneva talks followed a public outcry in Israel, including violent demonstrations by POW families, demanding that Israel take firmer action against Syria.

Israel Takes War Booty Into Arsenal

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israel captured hundreds of tanks, field guns and sophisticated Soviet-built missiles used by the Arabs in the October Middle East war, and are incorporating them into the Israeli weapons arsenal, the state radio announced Monday.

The broadcast said several hundred of more than 2,000 tanks the Arabs lost on the Egyptian and Syrian fronts are now manned by Israeli crews. Some were undamaged, but most were hit in the war and repaired by Israeli mechanics.

The tanks include the T62, the newest in the Arab arsenal of Russian weaponry.

Reports from Washington said American arms specialists were in Israel studying some of the captured weapons, including aircraft and antitank missiles.

Kissinger, Frenchman Clash

(c) New York Times Service
Brussels — Secretary of State Kissinger and Foreign Minister Michel Jobert of France clashed openly Monday over whether improved relations between the United States and the Soviet Union undermined the security of Western Europe.

Speaking at a meeting of Atlantic Alliance foreign ministers, Jobert said the agreement reached in Washington last June on the prevention of nuclear war was called into question by the American nuclear guarantees to Western Europe.

That point was proved, Jobert charged, by what happened during the Middle East war in October, when the United States placed its forces on worldwide precautionary alert without informing its allies in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Kissinger asked for the floor to reply and, according to conference sources, rejected Jobert's approach as "misrepresentation" of the American-Soviet agreement. In fact, he said, the agreement "enhanced" rather than diminished the U. S. commitment to help defend Western Europe.

Following the Kissinger-Jobert exchange, this first day of the annual two-day winter meeting of the NATO foreign ministers reportedly produced a consensus that new, much broader and more effective ways of bringing the allies together on the handling of crises must be quickly introduced.

Both Kissinger and Britain's foreign secretary, Sir Alec Douglas-Home, were said to have made it clear that they thought these consultations should include talks about trouble spots outside NATO territory, referring to the Middle East conflict and growing Soviet influence in the area.

As a result, other delegates took the sharp Kissinger-Jobert exchange as something that helped clear the air rather than a setback to the goal of reinvigorating and reinforcing NATO.

Kissinger and Jobert, who know each other well and have long enjoyed jousting in private, were scheduled to breakfast together Tuesday.

Further, a senior European diplomat said, the French agreed after Monday's clash to a separate meeting Tuesday of the foreign ministers of the nine European Common Market countries with Kissinger. Eight of the foreign ministers are attending the NATO session since their countries are NATO members as well; the ninth is Ireland.

The United States had been seeking a formal session with the Common Market group to discuss relations with the heads of governments of the nine countries met in Copenhagen last week.
